KAREN PERDUE

Karen Perdue

Karen is a professional financial advisor. She chose to work with Money Concepts in Georgetown because she wanted to be involved with an independent company with the strength of a worldwide network.

"Some people feel that financial planning is only for the rich," says Karen, "this is not the case at all. A financial planner can help you understand how to achieve your financial goals and then design a plan to help you get there."

The economy is constantly changing, and Karen understands this. That is why it's important to her to continuously update her knowledge by attending courses and seminars. These constant updates enable her to give her clients the best possible service.

When a client has a plan in place and realizes how attainable it is, it makes them feel more comfortable about their future. And that's a great feeling for both Karen and her client.

CAROL ATKINSON

Carol Atkinson

Carol Atkinson opened The Art of Nails and More last fall and has moved her business into her Main St. home.

Not only is it more cozy, but her new location allows her clients privacy and she passes the savings of having low overhead onto them.

The Art of Nails and More offers manicures, pedicures, artificial nails and all waxing services. Carol said she makes the experience a very pleasant and personal one. There are no line ups and Carol takes her time with each customer, giving them the best service and a positive experience.

Carol chose to get into the business of pampering other women because of the gratification of seeing someone walk away feeling like a new person. She's had clients leave with tears in their eyes, because they no longer have to hide their hands in shame or because their cracked feet and nails have been transformed.

"You forget about yourself when you're so busy running around doing things for the kids and your husband. When you do something for yourself, it's amazing how great it feels," she said. Carol has been in this line of work for five years and completed a nine month esthetics program in Burlington.
