Ballinafad's 4-H clubs meet

By BETTY SOJKA
Ballinafad News

Kind thoughts and prayers are being sent Jim Bailey's way. This past Friday, March 22, Jim was taken ill with heart problems. Rushed to Orangeville Hospital, Jim remains there in the Intensive Care Unit.

Family members are the only allowed visitors during this time. Get well soon, Jimmy! We are all rooting for you!

4-H Club

It was a book work night for the 4-H Club on Animals for their fourth meeting held March 19. Roll call was to name an animal character from a television show. Their studies also prompted discussion. Members learned about the importance of exercising their animals, and how much is required. Training your animal also involves learning how your animal thinks, in order to be successful. Creating a playground for your animal was also covered. Members had to give ideas for playgrounds for their own pets.

For their next meeting, members will have to think of a task or trick for their pet to do or make a toy for their pet to play with. A field trip to Wingrove's Veterinary Clinic will make up their next meeting on April 3.

Quilting Bee

There sure were some nimble fingers and busy hands at the United Church on March 19. Fourteen people got together for the UCW Annual Tie Quilting Bee. When the day wrapped up at about 3 p.m., a total of 17 quilts of assorted sizes had been made up. These quilts reflected some lovely patterns, as well as a wide variety of colors. The day had begun at 9:30 a.m., with the ladies breaking for a sumptuous potluck luncheon. UCW members even managed to squeeze in a short meeting. It was a most productive day.

Wearable Art

The Wearable Art 4-H Club had an interesting meeting on Saturday, March 23. Members met at the White Rose Craft store in Guelph. Here they walked down aisle after aisle, finding many great ideas in which they could decorate T-shirts, hair clips, etc. The purpose of this meeting was to give members an idea of the many craft items available. This was certainly achieved. The club meets next on March 30.
