ARE ALL HEARING AIDS THE SAME?

The only thing that all hearing aids have in common is that they amplify sound. They do not amplify all sounds equally or to the same manner. Hearing aids are selected to enhance your residual hearing. Your hearing loss is not the same as your neighbour or your friend. Yours is unique and requires individual fitting. Hearing aids are not like a radio which makes all sounds louder as you turn up the volume. Hearing aids amplify only certain frequencies. They can amplify one frequency more than another, and not amplify some frequencies at all. There are many, many combinations of circuitry, just like there are lenses in glasses.
