

Conservation Authority offers summer camp

The Halton Region Conservation Authority has a summer day camp program that features activities on the environment.

The Ways of the Woods camp is available to children 8 to 12 years old. Four two-week and eight one-week sessions are held during July and August and bus transportation is included with the camp fee. All participants are picked up at designated locations and are dropped off at pre-selected conservation areas each day.

The base camp for the Ways of the Woods program is the Mountsberg Wildlife Centre. Kelso, Mount Nemo and Crawford Lake Conservation Areas are also visited during the program.

Children discover nature through a series of games and activities that emphasize personal observations, listening skills, role playing, sharing and hands-on experiences.

Bus transportation is available to residents of Halton Hills.

A complete information brochure on this program is available by calling the conservation authority's administration office at (905) 336-1158. The cost for the program is $125/ week/child.

Jenny and John Blunt and Marlene Hodgins are happy to announce the engagement of Paul and Jennifer. Congratulations and Best Wishes Wedding to take place June 7, 1997.
