Terry Fox Run organizers prepare for Sept. 22 event

By LISA TALLYN
 Staff Writer

Everyone is encouraged to put on their running shoes next Sunday and participate in either the Georgetown or Acton 16th Annual Terry Fox Runs.

Participants can walk, run, bike or jog to raise money for cancer research.

The Acton run will be held at the Acton High School track between 8 a.m. and 3 p.m., and the Georgetown run will take place at a new location this year, on the trails in the Georgetown South Community Park, from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m. Participants should park and register near the ball diamonds located off Main St. south of Argyll Rd.

Pledge forms for the runs are available at banks, credit unions and variety stores. In Georgetown they can also be found at video stores, and on Friday and Saturday at the Terry Fox Run booth in Georgetown Marketplace. Participants can also show up at the sites on run day and just pledge a donation.

Up until last week it appeared the Georgetown run might be canceled because there wasn't an organizer, but Georgetown resident Bonnie Covert signed up for the job early this week. Covert decided to get involved because her brother Don Smith died of cancer in August.

"My brother was inspired by Terry Fox. He admired him," said Covert.

Jon Hurst, who has organized the Acton run since it began, is coordinating Acton's event again this year. Fox made an impact on him when he set off on his Marathon of Hope in 1980.

"I saw Terry in person," said Hurst. "He impressed me as he did millions of other Canadians."

Kim Smith of the Terry Fox Foundation said since 1981 Acton has raised $272,529 for cancer research. Last year's Acton run brought in $25,026. Based on revenue, Acton placed 21 of 230 the province last year.

The Georgetown run has not been as successful. Since 1981 Georgetown has raised $47,952. Last year $6,952 was raised for the Georgetown event.

For more information on the Acton run call Hurst at 853-2015. Call Covert at 877-5626 about the Georgetown run or volunteer.
