The Toronto stage continues to beckon 23 chorus members

Some members of the Georgetown Children's Chorus are one step closer to having roles in the upcoming production of Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dream Coat in Toronto.

The 23 members of the chorus who were selected to audition for the role of choir members in the show at the Elgin Theatre have been invited to compete in the second round of auditions.

Lois Fraser, administrator of the Georgetown Children's Chorus, said the choir members will perform two songs at the Elgin Theatre for the show's casting people on Tuesday, Jan. 7.

If they are successful at that audition they may be invited back to audition again about a week later, this time performing songs from the show.

If the choir members are selected to perform in the show they will appear with Donny Osmond who plays Joseph, and would have to take a month off school to rehearse. They would appear in four shows a week during the production's 13-week run, which begins in March.

Showcasing their talent

Numerous groups of Acton High School students took to the stage of the cafeteria Nov. 27 to lipsync to some rap favorites as well as popular songs of the 70s and 80s at the school's first annual AHS Talent Showcase, featuring lipsync performers as well as live vocalists.
