Tales for tykes

Little Kaitlyn O'Neill, 18 months-old, recently brought mom Julie out to take part in Baby Tales, a program for parents and their babies, six to 23 months old, at the Georgetown branch of Halton Hills Library. The program, which runs from March 27 to May 8 is designed to stimulate the little ones and introduce them to the library through books, music, movement and rhymes.

Community health forum set for April 8

Four local agencies will be hosting a special April 8 community forum on Understanding Heart Disease and Cancer, and Choices to Help Prevent Them.

The Halton Regional Health Department, Halton Lung Association, Halton branch of the Ontario Heart and Stroke Foundation and the Central West region branches of the Canadian Cancer Society under the umbrella group, Heart Health and Cancer Risk Reduction Network, is organizing the event. It's being sponsored by Georgetown's Work That Body Fitness Centre for Men and Women.

The evening begins at 7 p.m. with displays and representatives to help answer questions, followed at 7:30 p.m. by guest speaker, Jane Gilliauskas who is a registered nurse from Oakville Trafalgar Hospital, with an extensive background in cardiology and more recently education. Time will be allotted for questions.

To reserve a seat at the Bennett Health Care Activity Room, call 877-2238. Seating will be limited.

The Georgetown forum committee includes Maggie Connolly from the Halton Regional Health Department, Shirley Andrechek from the Georgetown Hospital, Joanne Wilson from the Town of Halton Hills, Tanya Kulnies from the Halton Lung Association and Lorrie Kelly-Quinn from the North Halton Cancer Society.
