Calling 911

Shelley Butkans, (left) manager of Bell Canada's 911 Emergency Service division, recently presented Glen Williams School students Shannon Kingshott and Natalie Major, and principal Patte Campbell (far right) with the first 911 education kit developed by Bell, which will be given to every Halton Hills School. The program is designed to educate young children in the proper use of the 911 service, through tapes, literature and videotapes. Halton Hills Mayor Marilyn Serjeantson (second from the right) was instrumental in having the kits placed in Halton Hills schools.
