"Complete Sales & Service"

What amazes me is how many people will buy a car from a car salesman who has no mechanical knowledge of cars at all! I'm a mechanic first, that's why I know what to sell, with confidence.

Town hires new CAO

The Town of Halton Hills has a new chief administrative officer. At a special council meeting Thursday night, council appointed Steve Andrews, currently the Deputy Commissioner of Public Works for the City of North York, to the post. Andrews, who has a civil engineering degree from the University of Toronto, has 21 years of municipal experience. In his job at North York he was responsible for 500 employees and a budget of $105 million. More than 100 applicants had applied for the Town of Halton Hills position. Andrews, who is married with one child, is to take over the job on May 19. In the interim town clerk Janet Lunn Stewart, will continue to fill the position.
