WHY AERATE YOUR LAWN?

Aeration of lawns, golf courses and parks has been a common practice for many years. Aerating your lawn annually is ideal. Proper aeration is done by removing plugs or cores of soil and thatch from your lawn. A hole 2-3 inches deep will do the job quite well.

Aeration will overcome a compacted soil. Compacted soils make it difficult for roots to grow, limiting the movement of air, moisture and fertilizer through the soil. It can also reduce your water requirements by relieving soil compaction. Water penetration is increased and water run-off is reduced.

If your lawn has a thick layer of thatch, aeration will push through that layer and improve air, water and nutrient penetration. This will enhance the development of a deep root system. A deeply rooted lawn will be healthier and better able to withstand drought, disease and insect stress. Aeration is most beneficial in the spring and fall.
