Georgetown will be well represented when the Bowling Green State University Falcons hit the golf course this season.

The Falcons' 10-member team will include a trio of Georgetown golfers—Dave Kotsos, Mike Kotsos and Ian Windsor. Mike Kotsos and Windsor are both entering their senior year while Dave Kotsos is going into his junior year.

Mike Kotsos had the fourth best average on the team last season, finishing with a 78.11 average over 27 rounds. His best tournament was the Midwestern Invitational where he finished fifth in a field of 52.

Windsor finished last season with an average of 80.83 over six rounds while

SPORTS SHORTS

Avenge 13-2 drubbing Raiders prove to be quick learners in taming Vipers

BY HERB GARBUTT
Staff Writer

One thing you can say about this year's edition of the Georgetown Raiders is that they learn quick. After being embarrassed 13-2 against the Vaughan Vipers in their home opener, the Raiders bounced back two nights later to beat the same Vipers 5-2 on Monday for their first win of the Provincial Jr. A Hockey League season. The Raiders had opened the season by tying the Cobourg Cougars 4-4 on Friday.

Raider coach Jay Anderson lectured the team on pride following Saturday's loss and then gathered the players for an 8 a.m. run on Sunday morning.

"We couldn't have written a script that was any more of a disaster," Anderson said before heading to Vaughan. "There was a huge lack of character."

But the players answered the bell Monday night by outscoring the Vipers 4-1 in the middle period.

Jason Read, Rob Larose, Peter Veltman, Scott MacDonald and Curtis Carr scored for the Raiders with Carr adding two assists. Single helpers went to Cerrone Natale, Andrew Sandziuk, Mike L'Heureux, Stace Page, Billy Fetherstone, Gene Spadaro, Larose and Read.

both came on the road, leaving the home fans with Saturday's debacle as their only impression. Georgetown fell behind 3-0 in the first six minutes and were in an 8-0 hole by the end of the second period.

The biggest contributor was a lack of discipline. L'Heureux wasn't the only guilty party but as the only returning defenceman he was most needed on the ice. Instead he picked up 22 minutes in penalties before getting tossed in the second. That left an all-rookie blueline that had its pockets picked more often than commuters on a New York subway.

Goalies Tim Ware and Jeff Hladysh also struggled, though they received little support.

"There's not a lot you can say," said Page, who along with Matt Hotham scored the Raider goals. "We weren't in it from the start. We definitely want to come back strong and send a message to the league that we're not a joke."

That they did. They also left a good impression on Friday during the annual College Weekend in Mississauga. The Raiders jumped ahead 3-1 on goals by Spadaro, MacDonald and L'Heureux but a brief lapse in the second period allowed Cobourg to tie the game. Cobourg then took the lead before Corey Brossard knotted the game at four. The Raiders outshot the Cougars in the third and overtime periods but couldn't net the winner.

"It's too bad. We were hoping for a win and we should have won," said Page, a second-year Raider. "We were definitely the better team."

RAIDER RAP: Vaughan had three shorthanded goals on Saturday....Mike Knoepfli separated his shoulder in Friday's game. He'll be out two to three weeks...Brossard (eye) and Shane Labelle (shoulder) also missed Saturday's game....The Raiders played in Mississauga last night (Tuesday) and will host Streetsville Saturday.
