Wine tasting tops Kiwanis Club's Harvestfest night

The Kiwanis Club of Georgetown had decided to stage an annual fall event called Harvestfest.

Famous for its spring Lobsterfest, the club is anxious to increase its service to the community and will benefit a needy group each year. This year, all proceeds go to Georgetown Little Theatre, which lost its building and all its assets in a fire last March.

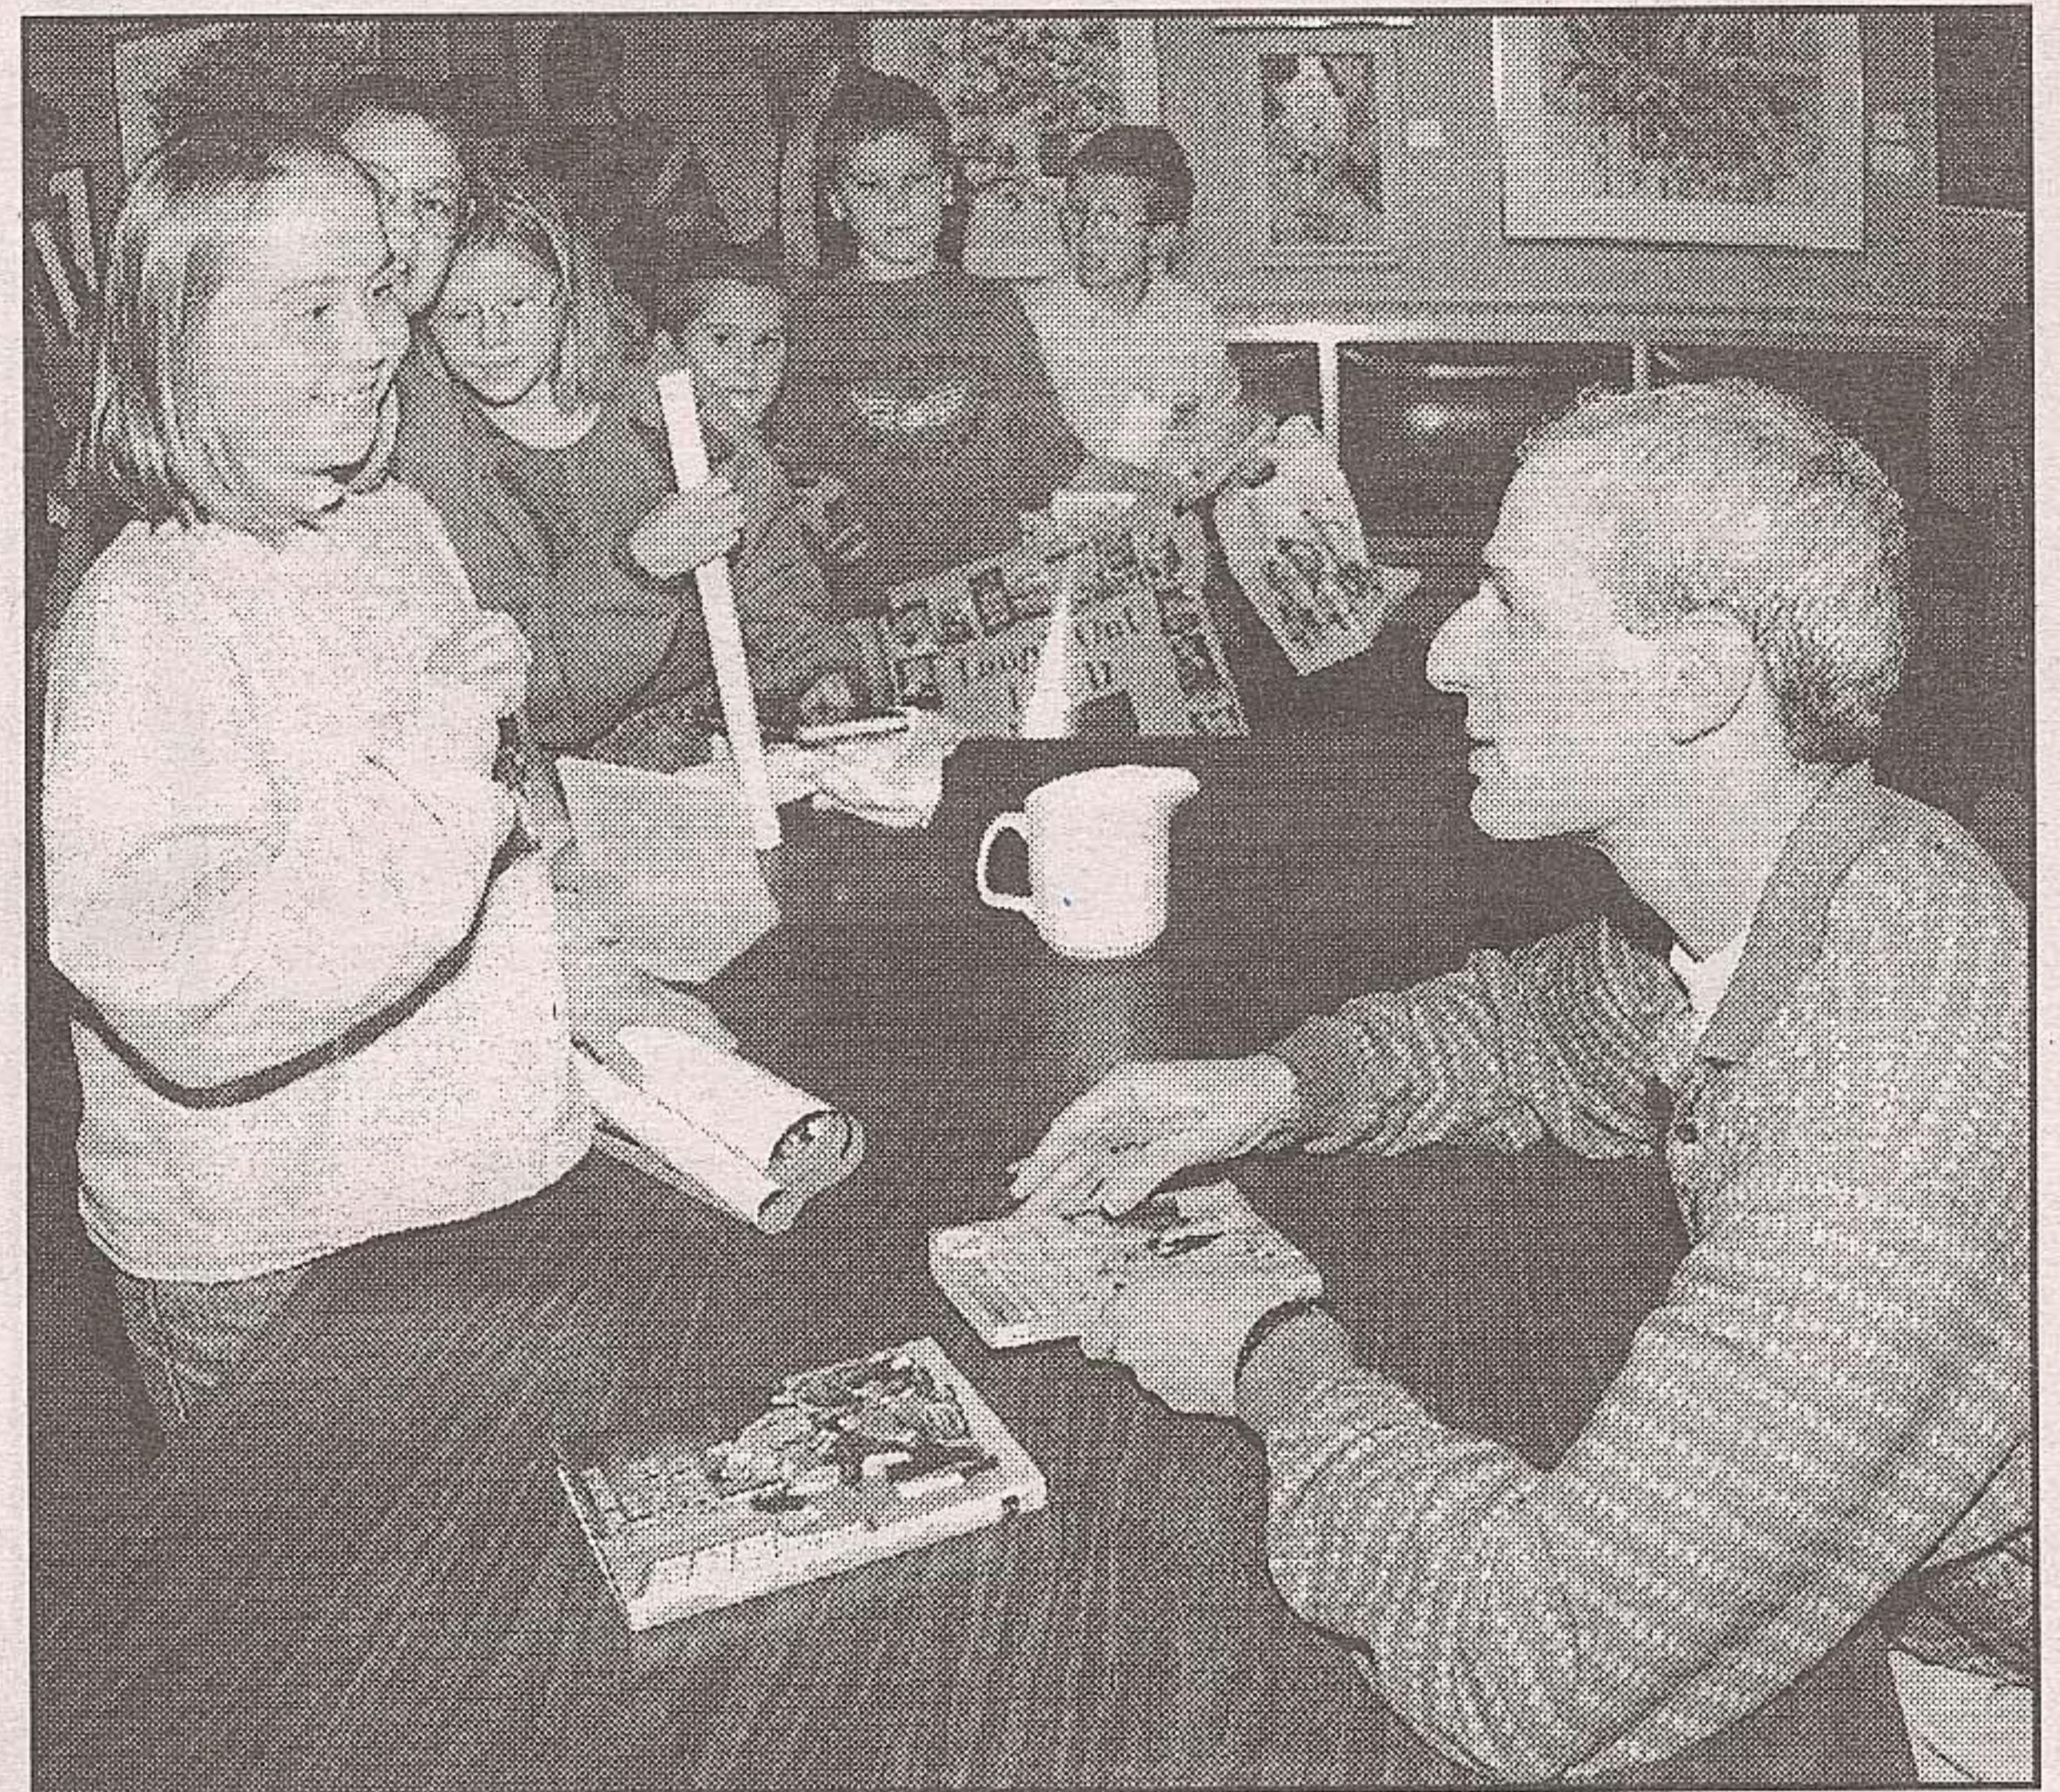

The evening, held at Holy Cross Church on Friday, Oct. 30, starts with a wine tasting, organized by Authentic Wines.

After tasting 10 varieties of wines, dinner will be serviced followed by a silent auction. Tickets are $30 each (tables of eight are reserved) and are available at Shoppers Drug Mart in the Marketplace Mall.

If you have any items or services to donate, please call 877-2321 as the club is counting on local support for the Georgetown Little Theatre.

The Kiwanis Club invites you to entertain your friends and do a good deed at the same time.

Author approval

Author Gordon Korman was at the Halton Hills Library in Georgetown recently to speak to and answer questions from his young fans. Korman, who wrote his first book— This Can't Be Happening at Macdonald Hall— when he was 12, later signed copies of his books and posters. Korman, whose latest book is called The 6th Grade Nickname Game, was appearing as part of the library's author series. Above fan Kathy Dewar gets a chance to chat while Korman signs a copy of his book.
