The Pajama Game opens tomorrow

Georgetown Globe Production's latest musical theatre offering, Richard Bissell's The Pajama Game opens tomorrow evening (Thursday) at 8 p.m. at the John Elliott Theatre.

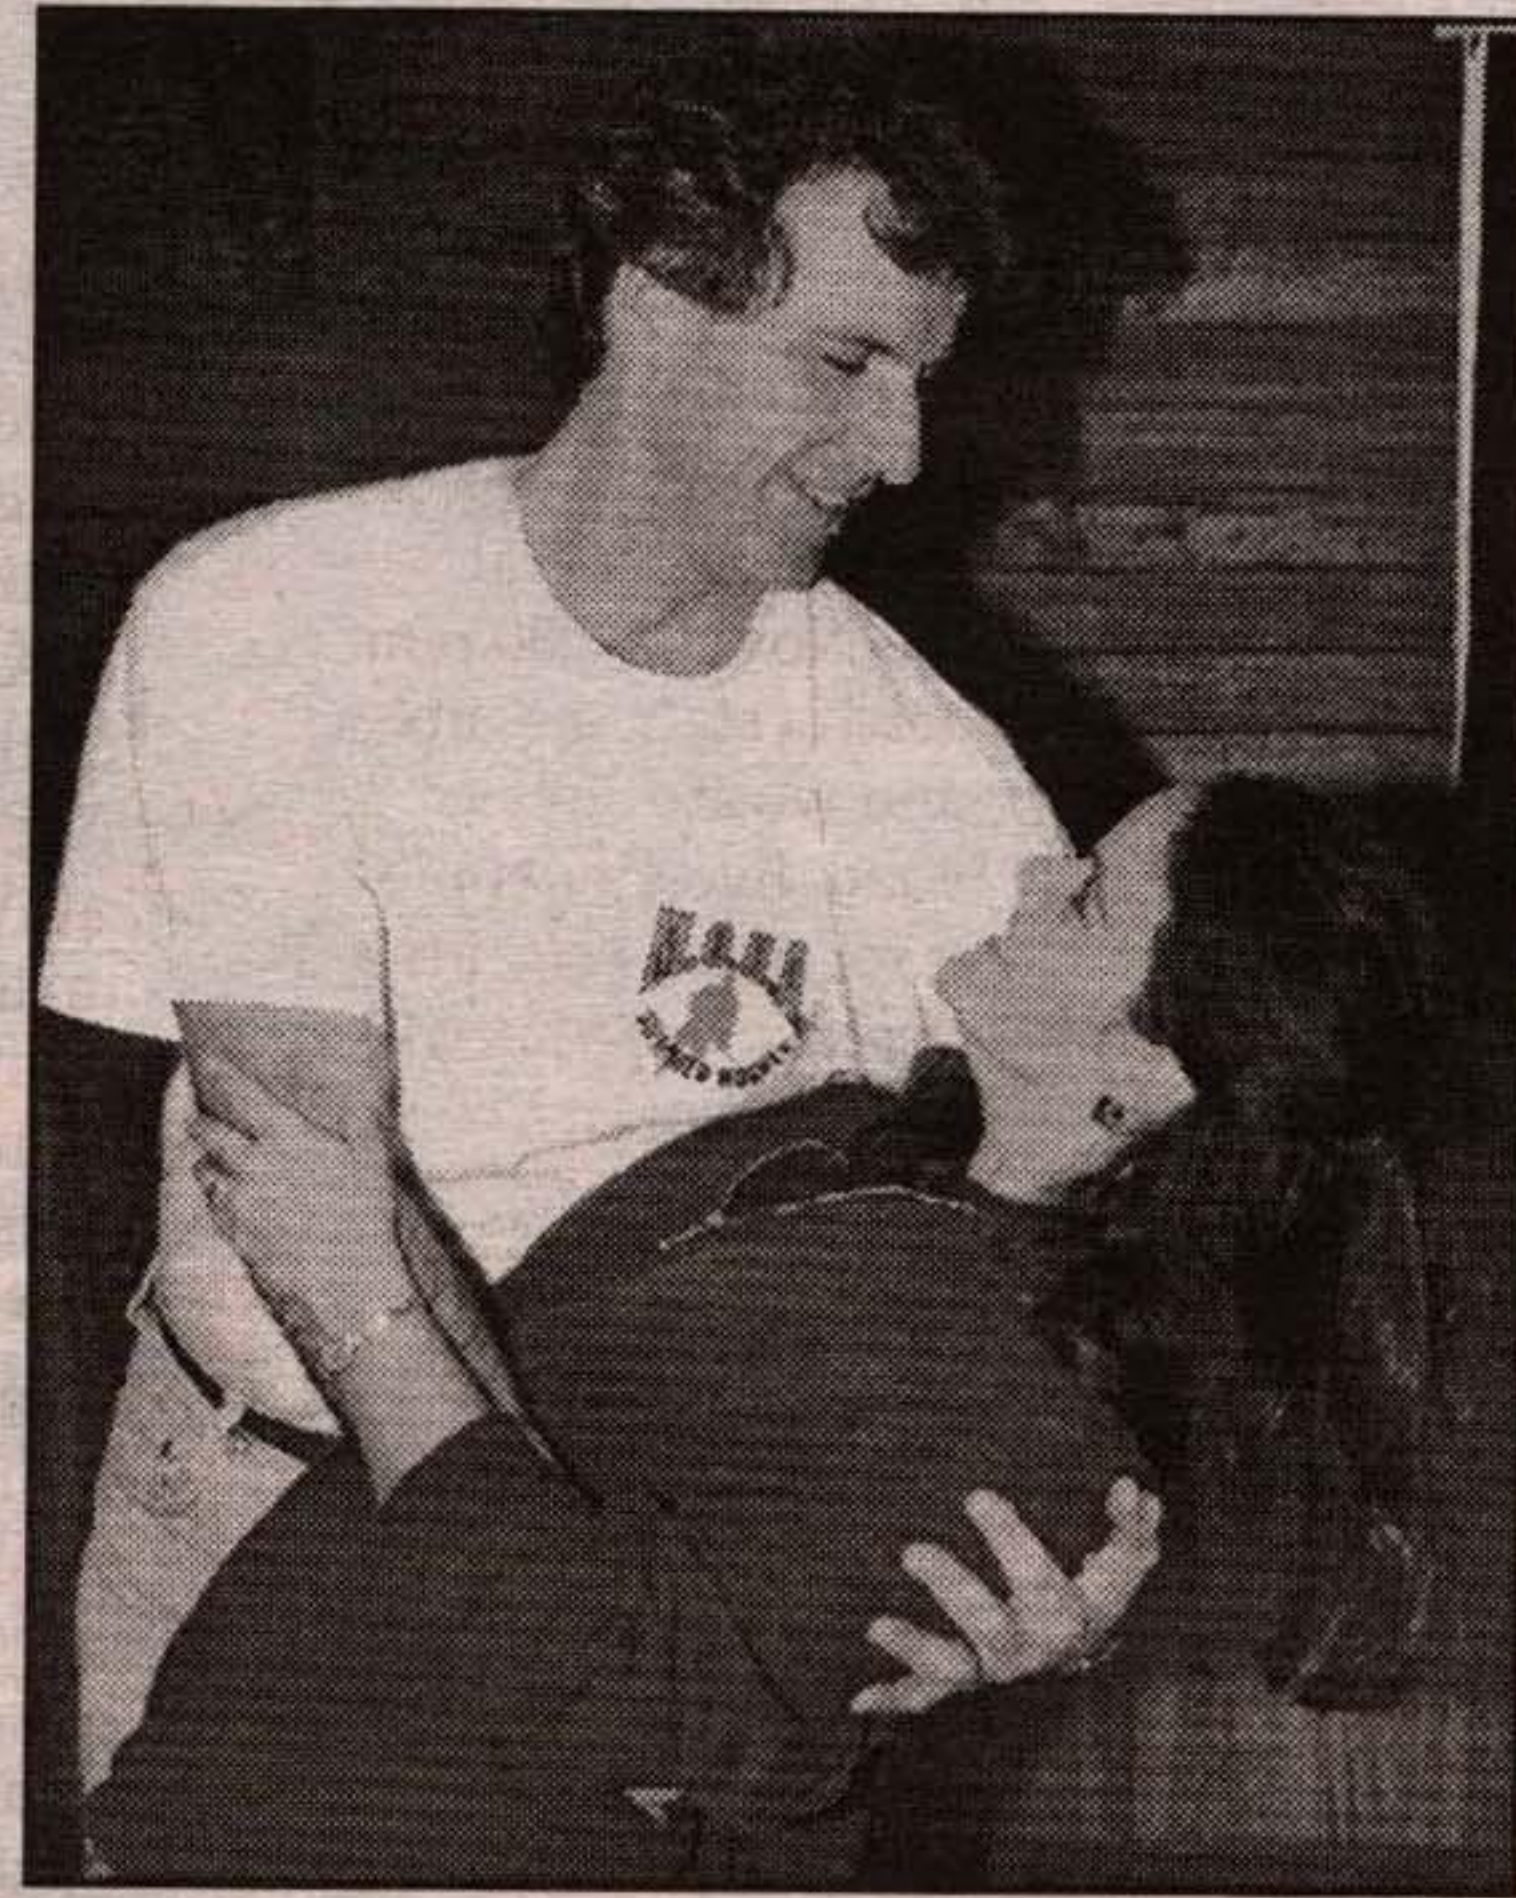

Members of the audience are invited to attend a Gala Wine & Cheese reception and meet cast members following the performance.

Set in 1950s Iowa, The Pajama Game tells the story of a local pajama factory and the age-old struggle of labor versus management. Full of intrigue, romance, showstopping dance numbers and knife-wielding hit men, The Pajama Game is sure to please young and old alike.

The Pajama Game boasts a cast of 23 members who deliver an energetic and enthusiastic performance. Audiences may recognize such featured performances as Jane Adair and Pat McManus last seen together in Globe's The Music Man. Adair plays Babe Williams, the feisty head of the Garment Worker's Union Grievance Committee at the pajama factory who locks horns with local management in the shape of newly appointed superintendent Sid Sorokin (McManus).

Rounding out the cast are a quirky time study man (William Poulin), the union president (Gord McLeod), a steamy secretary (Lee Livingston), a penny-pinching factory manager (Paul Bell) and a bevy of factory workers.

The show runs until Saturday, Nov. 28 with specialty-priced matinees featured Nov. 22, 28. Tickets may be purchased through the John Elliott Theatre Box Office at 877-3700 where special group rates are available.

Jane Adair (Babe) is pulled in a dozen different directions by her colleagues as she denies being in love in the upcoming Globe Productions' The Pajama Game at John Elliott Theatre.
