Patient Services Provided by the Cancer Society

Need a ride? The Canadian Cancer Society is more than a fundraising organization. It has a broad base of patient services. One of the volunteer services is a ride for patients. We are able to offer transportation help to all treatment centres in the Greater Toronto, Hamilton and surrounding area. A volunteer transport convener organizes the rides that patients need on a day to day basis. As a general rule, arrangements are made a week ahead of time.

Taking time out of their busy lives, drivers commit themselves to taking patients to the treatment centres and agreeing on a time of pick up for the return trip. Patients are sometimes asked to travel with another person in a similar need. Upon arrival the driver checks in with a central office and the odd time a patient travels with someone in need of a return trip. By concentrating on the driving, the volunteers hope to relieve the anxiety that might be detrimental to driving.

Larger treatment centres have a residential lodge in which a patient can stay, if their treatment is concentrated into blocks of days. Daily travel to treatment centres can be very tiring. Accommodation is provided by the Cancer Society with the patient responsible for only the cost of meals.

Other patient services include one to one visiting and emotional support, information about support groups in the area and funding for certain necessary services.

If you need a ride to cancer treatment facilities and other assistance it can be arranged by calling your local Cancer Society in either Acton or Georgetown.
