Mobile service brings repair shop to you

Ever have trouble finding time to take your car in for a tune-up? If only the dealership could come to you. Well, now it can.

Georgetown Chrysler recently bolstered its service department by adding a mobile service van. It is only the second Chrysler dealership in Ontario—the other is in London—to get the van.

"It's a step to continue to strive to exceed our customer's expectations," said Paul Auty of Georgetown Chrysler.

Pat McEachern, national trainer for Chrysler Canada, said Georgetown Chrysler was chosen for the project because of its reputation.

"Paul Auty realizes that to maintain customers, he has to provide service that they don't expect."

The van is capable of most repairs that don't require a hoist. It can perform tuneups, trim replacements, accessory installations, inspections, maintenance checks, tire changes and rotations. The van comes equipped with a canopy so that the mechanic can still perform repairs if it is raining or snowing.

"It's not intended to replace road side assistance. It will be on a scheduled basis," McEachern said. "When a call comes in for repair or service, they'll be able to identify which job the van is capable of handling.

Then, rather than coming in, we go to you."

"We're not going to ask you to drop your car off for a day so we can install a bug deflector," Auty said. "Instead we'll come to your house, your work or the GO station and install it there. It's like a mobile service bay."
