

Rognvaldson nominated for award

Dorothy Rognvaldson of Acton was one of the 20 nominees for the recent Women's Centre's annual Women of the Year Award.

One of the four winners was Dorothy Allen of Acton who was profiled in the May 12 Independent & Free Press.

Rognvaldson, 81, prepares meals for people returning from hospital, and is an organizer of many successful church functions, volunteer driver for Red Cross, board member of Halton Hills Community Support and Information, and a Parkinson support group.

Life with Miss June isn't easy

Never in my wildest dreams did I think I'd be able to say this, but I'm living with a calendar girl. Miss June to be precise.

And better still is the fact that wifey doesn't even mind. Hell, it was her idea.

Now, before the males out there begin heading for a cold shower, it should be pointed out this particular calendar features cats, not people, and Miss June is actually our two-year-old grey feline named Gypsy.

The calendar in question is called T.C. and Friends, a spiffy-looking year 2000 calendar featuring the artwork of Oakville's Lyn Estall. It will be on sale later this year in a variety of book stores and craft shops.

Estall, who just happens to be my doctor's wife, has been drawing these calendars for a number of years. She receives photos from a variety of people, chooses the ones that strike her artistically, and includes them in the calendar.

About a year and a half ago wifey saw Lyn at one of her art shows soon after we got Gypsy and Lyn suggested sending her a picture of the newest addition to our zoo. Several months later we received a note from Lyn, which featured a small print of Gypsy poking her head out of a pot of silk sunflowers. The drawing was identical to the photo wifey had sent Lyn.

Now, when it comes to art, I'm the last person who should give an opinion. I was the only kid who failed art in Grades 4, 6 and 7. Ask me to draw a person's face and

THAT

John McGhie

I'll give you something that resembles a rhino's backside.

As far as paintings go, I've never had much interest in them if there wasn't a hockey goalie somewhere in the picture.

But, I have to admit, Lyn has definitely captured Gypsy to perfection.

This tiny grey bundle of energy that was abandoned in a dumpster, rescued by Animal Aid and then brought home by wifey has, as they say, come a long way, baby.

And, you'd better believe Gypsy's new-found celebrity has gone to her tiny head. She now insists on being hand-fed, all closet doors must be left open for her to explore, the dogs are not allowed within 10 feet of her and our old cat Mickey must get off the fuzzy blanket when she wants to lie on it (Mickey, however, told her in no uncertain cat terms where she could stuff that idea.).

Now that Gypsy has made a name for herself as a super model I'm wondering if maybe a career in television awaits.

After all, Morris had to start somewhere.
