

Q: Why did the chicken cross the road?

A: To live longer.

By walking across the road, the chicken gained a healthier heart and lungs... and a positive attitude.

Halton Police's TRACE program received a boost recently with the donation of $2,300 from three sources. The Kinsmen Club donated $1,000, the Optimist Club of Georgetown donated $800 and DDH Distribution donated $500. On hand for the presentation were (from left) Sgt. Gavin Hayes, Optimist Bill Wilson, Kinsmen president Dan Breznicar, Halton Const. Ron Hansen and Tyrone Gordon of DDH.

Police take to bicycles under TRACE

For the past few months several Halton Hills police officers have been carting bicycles around behind their cruisers and use them on the job whenever they get the chance.

The eight officers in Acton and Georgetown are members of TRACE (Targeted Response And Cycling Enforcement), which was recently introduced in Halton Hills.

"The bicycles allow police officers to get to places they couldn't get to before," said Const. Dennis Dimitroff. He said the bikes are excellent because they provide officers with a silent approach. They are ideal for riding behind businesses, apartments and even into the bush.

The officers are riding mountain bikes purchased from Ollie's Cycle & Ski thanks to donations from DDH and the Kinsmen and Optimist clubs.
