

Inside the Watch Tower

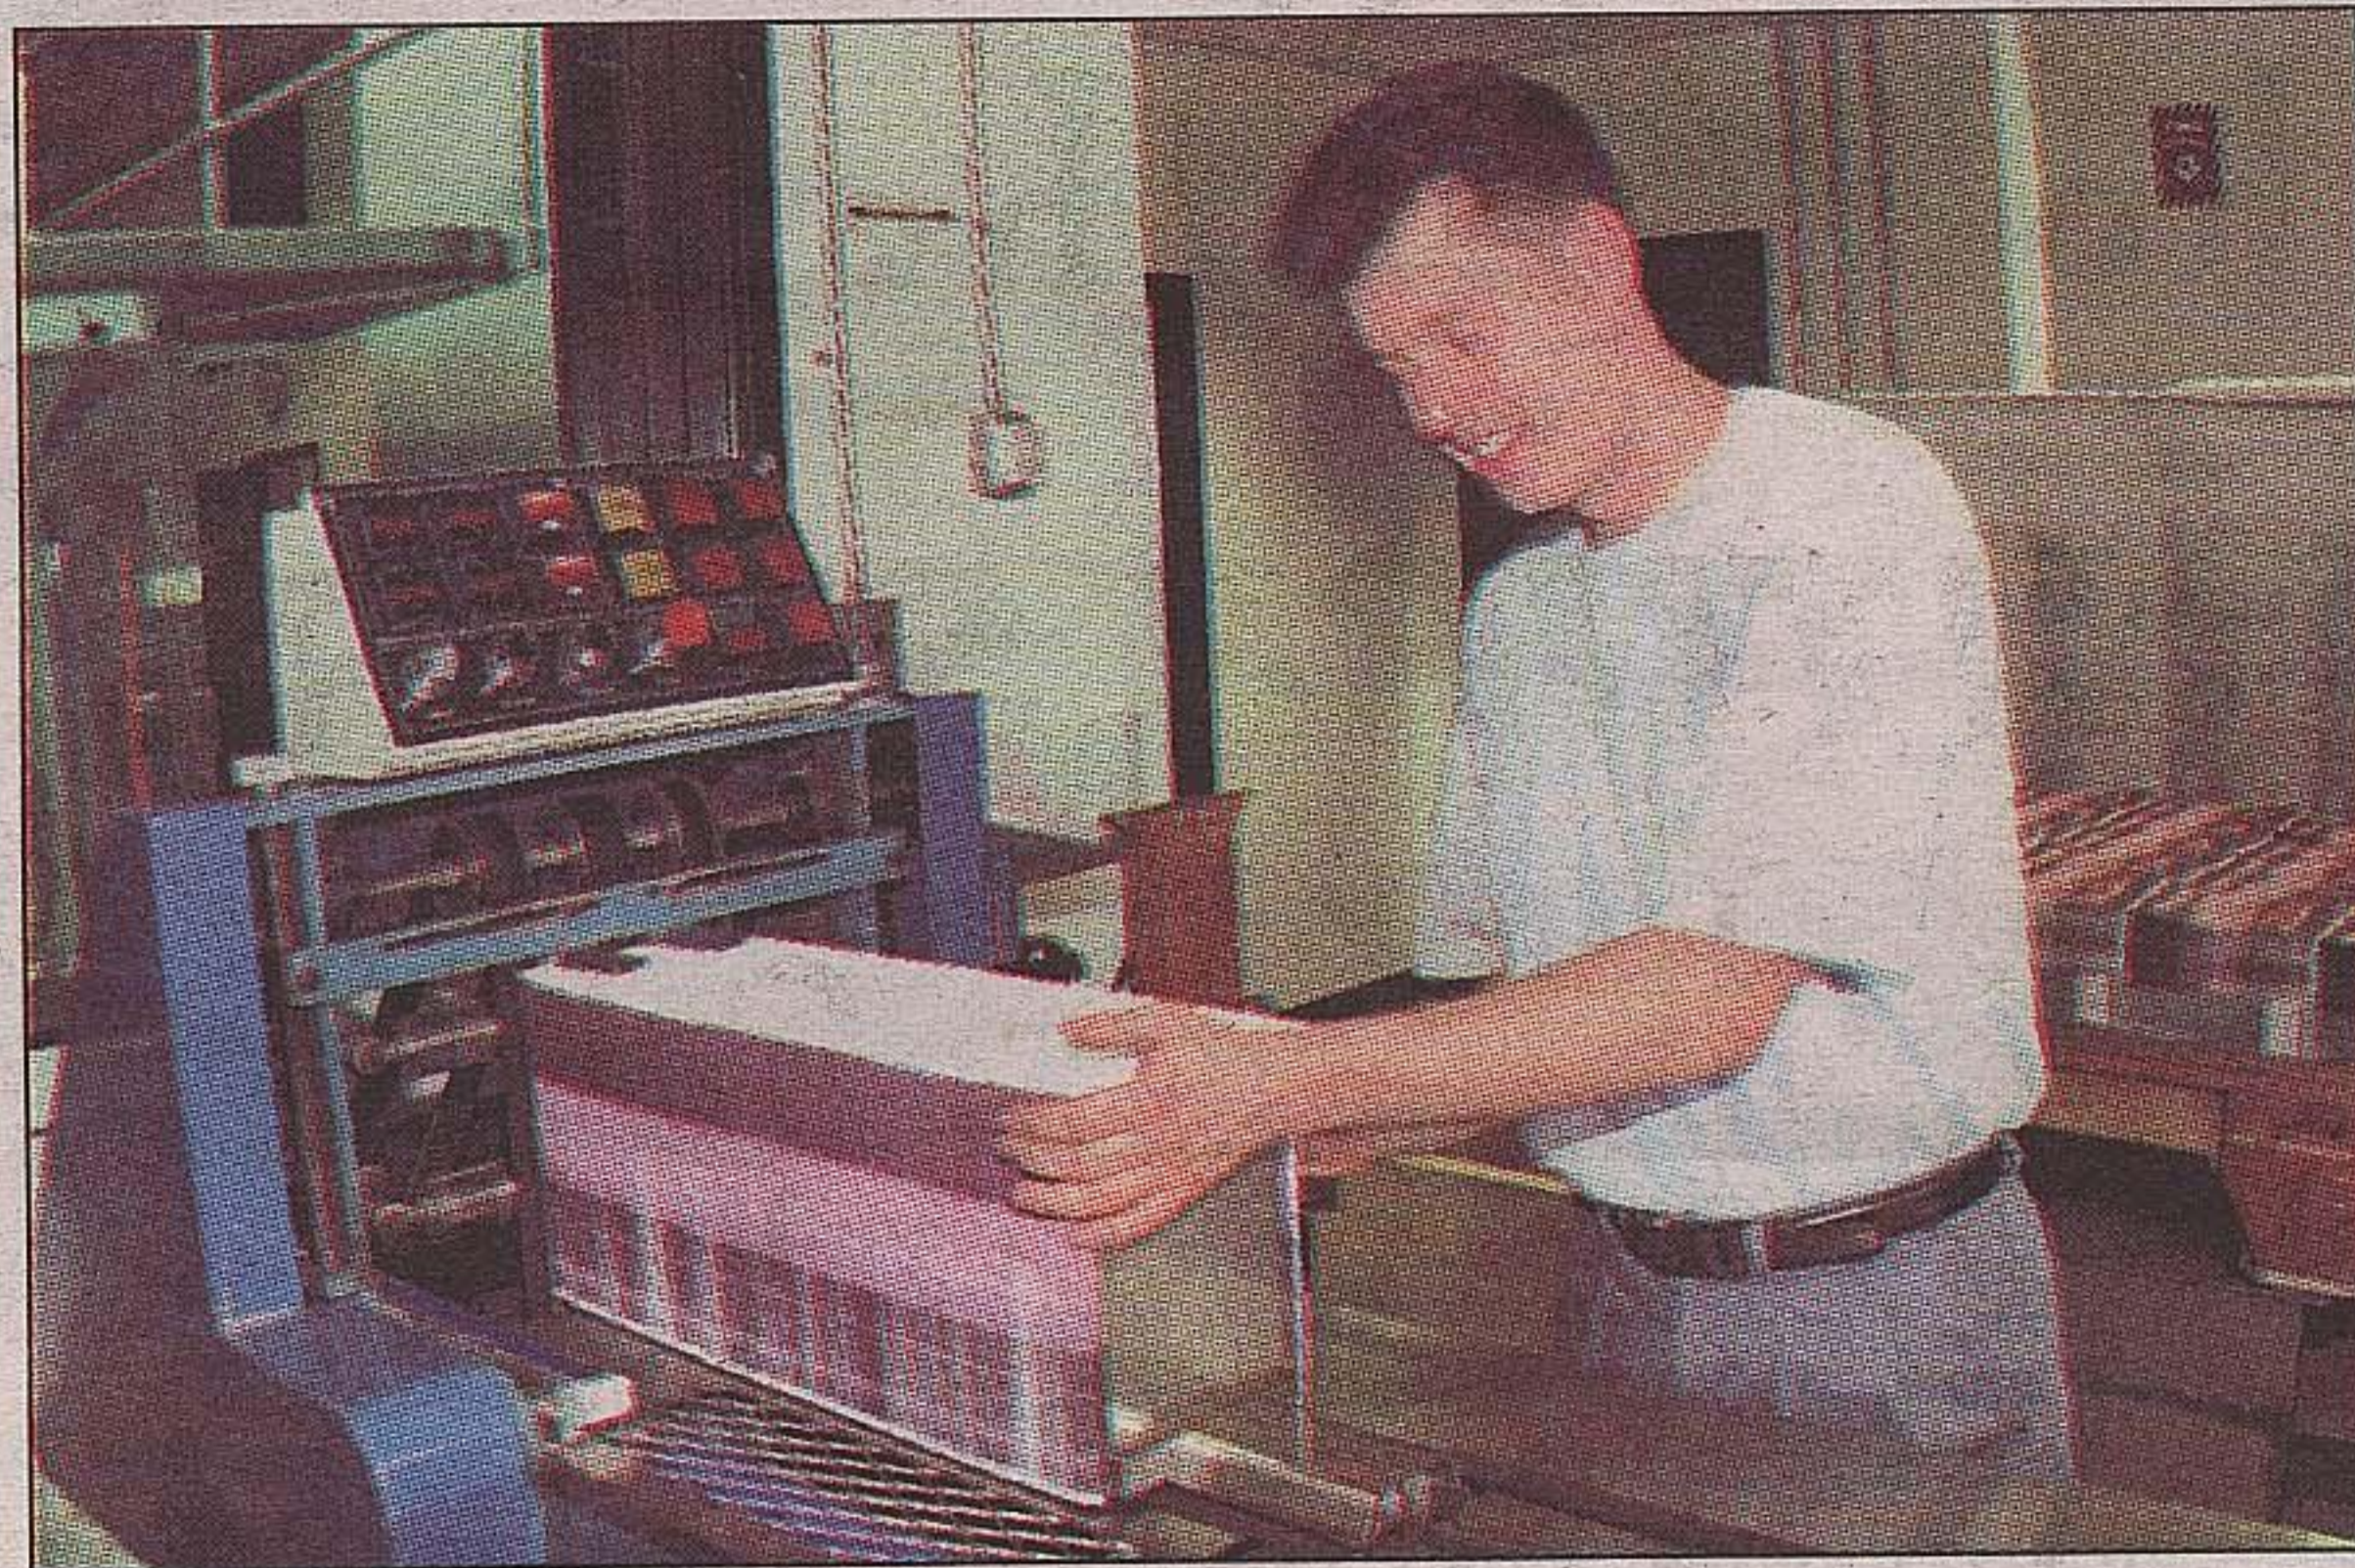

Tour of Jehovah's Witnesses complex attracts 5,400

About 5,400 people toured the Jehovah's Witnesses at the Watch Tower complex on Hwy. 7 during an open house last week.

The open house at the complex on Thursday, Friday and Saturday was held to mark its 20th anniversary in Georgetown. Previous open houses were held in 1993 and 1981.

The complex, consisting of 22 buildings on 270 acres, is the administrative headquarters for the Jehovah's Witnesses of Canada. The activities of the more than 1,300 congregations across Canada attended by approximately 185,000 Jehovah's Witnesses are co-ordinated at the complex. It is also where the publications Watch-Tower, which examines world events in line with Bible prophecies, and Awake!, a bi-monthly news magazine are printed.

Last year about 22 million copies of the magazines were printed at the Watch Tower complex. Vietnamese Bible literature is
