Local dancers excel in summer competitions

Students at the Casey School of Highland Dancing had a very successful season, competing in several competitions and performing at fall fairs and concerts.

A dozen young dancers faced competition from around the world in Ottawa's National Congress Centre this summer. As overwhelming as the event was, the dancers enjoyed the sights in our nation's capital and meeting other dancers from across North America, Scotland and New Zealand, bringing home memories of an experience of a lifetime, and medals in their highland events.

In addition to this event many dancers attended summer highland games, indoor competitions, and attended a local dance camp where Sheryl Joyner was our guest highland instructor. We also welcomed guest instructors from Cheri Lindsay's Dance School, Flamingo Dance School, and Work That Body.

The Casey School of Highland Dancers were guest performers for the Georgetown Children's choir last season, recently performed at the Georgetown Fall Fair and at our annual Scottish Tea held for family and friends.

The school appreciates the support of parents at the dance school, our local community for supporting our fund-raising events and the Royal Canadian Legion for their donation.

We are ready for the many challenges of this next year. From September to December we have space for beginners, for ages 5-9 on Wednesdays at 5 p.m., for ages 3-4 on Wednesdays at 6 p.m., for ages 10 and up Thursdays at 6 p.m., and an adult class Saturdays at 9 a.m.

Novice to premier dancers will be slotted into appropriate classes on Wednesday and Thursday nights with competition classes on Saturday.
