Public's help sought for Remembrance Park

The Remembrance Park Millennium Project is looking for the community's support to help revitalize the site of Remembrance Day ceremonies in Georgetown.

The project's steering committee hopes to transform the park, which currently has little landscaping, into a place where people can pay tribute to veterans year-round. The design is intended to make the park an inviting place and a lasting tribute to those who served Canada. Included in the design is a Veterans Walk, benches, trees and other landscaping.

"We want to make more of an all-year, all-around park," said Rein Pater, co-chair of the steering committee.

"I think that will be very helpful in keeping remembrance alive, especially amongst the younger people."

The project group will be going door-to-door handing out flyers over the next two weeks asking for donations. The group is trying to raise $219,000. The committee has applied for millennium project grants from three levels of government but most of the cost will be covered through donations from businesses and members of the community.

Tax receipts will be issued for all donations. Donations of supplies and services are also being accepted.

Pater said initial response to the project has been good, with people asking about donating benches and trees in honor of family members and friends.

For further information contact Martin Boomsma (877-5843), Rein Pater (877-0660) or Tom Schenk (877-6839).
