Local man elected to international council

Henry A. Rasanen, president of Henry Controls Inc. of Georgetown has been elected vice-president of District 13 of the ISA—an international society for measurement and control at a recent meeting.

He will serve on the board for two years.

Rasanen joined the Toronto chapter in 1974 where he has served as president, vice-president, delegate, Standards & Practices chairman and chair of the Toronto Section Host Committee. He also served on the Marketing & Sales Division for Canada. Currently, he serves on the Strategic Planning Department. He received the Toronto Section Distinguished Service Award in 1993.

ISA is a 46,000 member international, non-profit education organization that fosters the advancement in the theory, design, manufacture and use of instruments, computers and systems for measurement and control. It serves the professional development and credential needs of Control Systems Engineers (CSE), instrument technicians and others within the fields of measurement and control.

Its Web site is www.isa.org.
