

New wheels

Halton Regional Police recently put two new supervisors' vehicles— Chevrolet Tahoes— on the road. The vehicles, one stationed in Milton to serve the north end and the other in Oakville, are used to carry emergency equipment such as fire extinguishers, extra flashlights and charges, flares and ropes, and can serve as mobile command posts until the main command post arrives. Checking out the Tahoe at the Georgetown police station recently were, from left, Sgt. Brian Crosby, who uses the vehicle, Halton Regional Police Services Board member John Day and deputy chief Gary Crowell.
