BE TO PLACE

Halton Hills is the...

It's often been said people make a town and, while that is certainly true, there is no denying events and occurrences also play a large role in shaping a community.

Halton Hills is no different.

During the past 100 years several events have occurred that altered the course of history for this town and changed the lives of many who lived here.

Closures of such longtime employers like the Beardmore Tannery, Provincial Papers and Dominion Seed House affected hundreds, if not thousands, of local workers, as did the cancellation of the Avro

Arrow.

But along with those losses, the town has also managed to revel in the great accomplishments of some of its citizens such as the 1982 Hardy Cup triumph by the Georgetown Raiders, the literary successes of Norval author Lucy Maud Montgomery and the welcoming of 109 Armenian orphans in 1923.

Inside we have assembled 12 memorable moments from the past 100 years— snapshots of our town. The place we call home. The place to be.
