

Remembrance Park ceremony set for Saturday

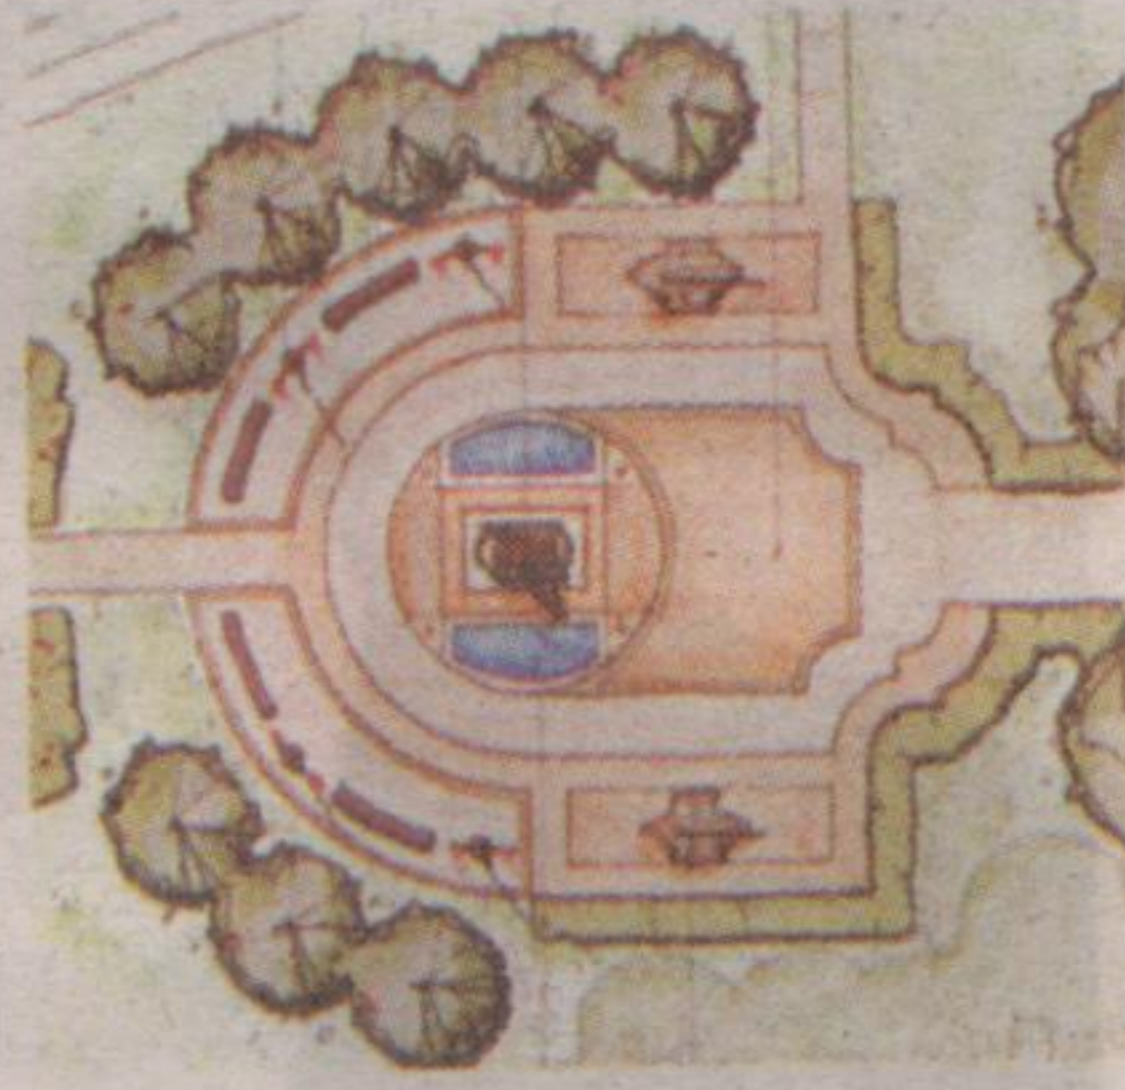

After months of work Georgetown's Remembrance Park has been renovated and will be dedicated tomorrow (Saturday).

Martin Boomsma, chair of the Remembrance Park Millennium Steering Committee, said about 1:45 p.m. a parade featuring a Georgetown Legion Branch 120 Colour Party, Georgetown Girls Pipe Band, Acton Citizen's Band, American Legion Post Forty Colour Guard Plymouth, Massachusetts, scouts, guides and veterans will make its way from the legion to the park for the 2 p.m. dedication ceremony.

Boomsma said Reverend Peter Barrow will officiate at the ceremony and the cenotaph, which has been relocated to a more central location in the park, will be unveiled by two local veterans and two local elementary school children.

Following the ceremony everyone is welcome to attend Knox Presbyterian Church Hall for refreshments.

Work competed during the $270,000 renovation of the park included refurbishing and relocating the cenotaph and installing a water feature at the base, installation of flag poles, hard surface gathering space and walkways, shade garden, white garden, commemorative gardens, shade pavilion, entry walls of natural stone and pedestrian level lighting.

Boomsma said nearly all the work was done by local people and many volunteers had a hand in the success of the project.
