GLT to present Thursday benefit for the Remembrance Park Millennium Project

Andrew Kerr debuts in his first major acting role in Georgetown Little Theatre's On Golden Pond.

Kerr stars as Billy, the teenaged boy dumped on an older couple for the summer. He is joined on stage by Mark Tiller as Norman and Pat Ball as Ethel.

On Golden Pond opens with a benefit performance for the Remembrance Park

Millennium Project on Nov. 2. The Nov. 4 performance is a Gala Night to meet the cast/crew in the Gallery. Tickets for the Gala are $10 with wine and refreshments served.

Other show dates are Nov. 3, 8, 9, 10 and 11. Tickets are $15 for the Wednesday and Thursday nights and $18 for the Friday and Saturday nights. Call the box office at 877-3700.

Meet the artist of new Williams Mill exhibit

The Williams Mill Gallery in Glen Williams will be exhibiting the sculptures and drawings of Holly Ferguson. The show, Figures in Fabric, opened Wednesday and continues until November 19. Meet the artist at an opening reception tomorrow (Saturday), 2-5 p.m. Ferguson's work embodies the journey of life and the people she has seen or imagined. The Williams Mill Gallery is located at 515 Main St., Glen Williams. For information call 873-8203.

Free concert on Sunday

Sunday at 3, a series of free Sunday afternoon concerts in the Gallery of the Halton Hills Cultural Centre, resumes this Sunday (Oct. 29) with Paul and Anna Pacanowski. Their program will include music from the classics to ragtime, as these talented musicians perform on piano, flute, clarinet and saxophone.

Doors open at 2:30 p.m. for this hour-long concert, and refreshments will be served. There is no admission charge, but pay-what-you-can.
