Pomp and circumstance

The two year-long Remembrance Park Millennium Project came to fruition Saturday as Remembrance Park was re-dedicated in a colourful ceremony. The Royal Canadian Legion Branch 120 Colour Guard was front and centre (above) during the opening parade. (Right) Crystal Thorogood, of the Remembrance Park committee, speaks to the crowd. The project, which cost more than $300,000, involved the restoration of the cenotaph and armaments in the park.
