

Lost and found

Antonio Vidal, the Georgetown man who Halton Police were trying to locate last week after he didn't show up for work, has been found in Ajax safe.

Police warning

Halton Regional Police have received several calls over the past couple of days from area business people who have received letters from Nigeria about a business proposition. Police say the proposition, which requires the receiver of the letter to provide banking information, phone and fax numbers, is a fraudulent scam and recommend people ignore the letters. For information call the fraud unit at 905-878-5511.

Kids back in school

It still hasn't been determined what caused 14 people to become nauseous, light-headed and have difficulty breathing at Acton High School last Monday.

POLICE BLOTTER

Joy Thompson of the town's Recreation and Parks Department said the air was tested extensively. She said as well, cleaning solvents used in the area and what the ill people ate and drank were analyzed, and sewer pipes were cleaned. All reports came back negative.

The school has received a clean bill of health and the town began holding its camp programs there again Monday. But she said to ease the minds of some of the music theatre camp participants they are not working in the room where many of the youths began having symptoms.

Bestsellers 'on loan'

Halton Hills Chief Librarian Betsy Cornwell was recently joined by Clinton Roberts of BroDart Ltd. as they looked over the first shipment of books from a new leasing program. Instead of buying multiple copies of bestsellers that will eventually take up space on crowded shelves, these extra copies will be leased to ease the demand on the waiting lists. When demand for the title has waned the books will be sent back to the leasing company in exchange for new popular bestsellers. The library has signed a contract with the BroDart leasing company which will provide them with 120 additional copies over a one-year period.
