Georgetown Horticultural Society announces garden contest results

The Georgetown Horticultural Society has announced the results of the 2001 Garden Contest.

The Best Backyard Landscaping award went to Sue Mancini while the Best Foundation Landscaping went to Gabrielle Allison.

Cudos for the Best Overall Garden goes to Belinda Gallagher while Lynda Discenza received the Best Town Garden accolade.

Best Use of Annuals prize went to Marina and Ron Archer while Shirley Gretter picked up the award for the Best Variety of Plant Material.

Ann Thorpe of Acton received the Best Rural Garden award with Ted Thompson getting the runner-up prize.

The Society's judges were impressed with the quality of the gardens entered, and the health of the plant material despite the severe drought conditions this summer.

The Best Town Front Garden went to Lana Tezak of Acton with Kathy Quigley being runner-up.

The awards will be presented along with a slide presentation of the winning gardens at the Society's Potluck Supper on Wednesday, Dec. 5, 6:30 p.m. at Georgetown's Knox Church hall.
