

Steven resigns as hospital president

William Osler Health Centre president and CEO Leo Steven is resigning to take the position of president and CEO at Sunnybrook & Women's College Health Sciences Centre.

Steven will continue at William Osler until the end of June, and will begin his new job in July. The health centre board of directors will search for a replacement for Steven through the use of an executive recruitment agency.

Steven, who in August 1998 became president and CEO of the newly amalgamated Northwest GTA Hospital Corporation (later named William Osler), is credited with many accomplishments.

He led the corporation through one of Ontario's most successful amalgamations, secured a new hospital for Brampton and major expansions to the Etobicoke, Georgetown and Brampton sites.

He also increased overall funding to the health centre by more than $73 million.

"The challenge of bringing three hospitals together will always be one of the greatest milestones in my career," said Steven.

"Working with the board of directors, senior and medical leadership, staff, physicians and volunteers has been an incredible experience. Their dedication is a testimony to the commitment they all have to William Osler Health Centre and its communities."
