Lead actors are shipshape in Globe's Anything Goes

By TED BROWN
Staff Writer

The S.S. American set sail from John Elliott Theatre Thursday night as Georgetown Globe Productions launched its current offering, Anything Goes.

Set in the 1930s, the whimsical Cole Porter musical centers around the sailing of a transatlantic luxury liner from New York to London, and the intertwined love interests that take place on the high seas.

Billy Crocker, assistant to Wall St. tycoon Elisha J. Whitney, finds himself on the ship as it sets sails after dropping off some papers for his task master boss. He discovers an old love Hope Harcourt is on board, making the trip to London with her new fiance, nobleman Sir Evelyn Oakleigh, to be married in London.

Billy teams up with a fugitive gangster, Moonface Martin who is posing as a minister, with his dippy accomplice Bonnie. Billy uses a spare ticket he purchases from Moonface, and enlists help from his old friend, lounge singer Reno Sweeney, who is also making the voyage, to charm Hope back over to his side.

Reston Williams turns in a strong performance as Billy Crocker, and is complemented by Elizabeth Bell who is a
