Magic show to benefit literacy group

Learning to read has a magical power for people who have spent a lifetime struggling to cope with the printed word.

Literacy North Halton is raising funds to keep their magic act alive by bringing Ted Outerbridge & Marion to town with their Magical Moments in Time show on May 25, 8 p.m. at the John Elliott Theatre.

Ted Outerbridge and Marion present internationally-acclaimed performances characterized by whimsy, comedy and mind-bending illusions.

Their appearance in Halton Hills is part of a Canadian tour introducing the sensational show that played to sold-out houses in Europe.

Ted and company will turn the theatre into their version of a time machine taking the entire audience on a journey into imagination and wonder.

Tickets are available at Acton and Georgetown libraries; $18 for adults, $12 for children 12 and under. For information call Literacy North Halton, 905-873-2200.

Dancing damsels

Three Halton Hills School of Dancing members, (from left) Christine Reid, Janina Piva and Niki Harrison, won at a recent choreography competition held at the school. Open to all age groups, the competition highlighted the talents of many of the school's students. Principal of the school Yvonne Oldaker said, "The competition gives dancers the opportunity to express their creativity, and it's a lot of fun."
