Homeschool Group wins Book Battle

The junior team from the Georgetown Homeschool Group came away champs at the regional finals in the Battle of the Books held in Oakville.

Battle of the Books is a program offered by Halton libraries, in which children in Grades 3-8 get to test their knowledge of children's literature by answering questions in a game show format. Both the junior and senior Homeschool teams won the Halton Hills competition and went on to compete against top teams from Burlington, Milton and Oakville schools.

The junior team won the regional title after winning two close matches decided by tie-breaking sudden death questions. Team members were Hannah and Elisha Wielinga, Leslie Webb, Brandon Conway, Neil McKenzie-Sutter, Chris Thomson, Jeff Faber, Kim Faber and Coriander Stevens. Senior team members were Jason Goobie, Nathan Goobie, Kyle Roest, Jeremy Stevens, Ryan Thomson, Jennifer Thomson, Logan Conway, Rachel Wielinga and Sarah Faber; instructors Liz Roest and Val Thomson.
