Fair looking for an ambassador

Young men and women will have the chance to vie for the title of Georgetown Fall Fair Ambassador in a couple of weeks.

This year's competition is set for 6 p.m. Friday, September 6 at the Georgetown Fall Fair.

Current Ambassador Tonya Butler has enjoyed her past year in the role.

"It was a lot of fun," said Butler, 18, who added that her year as Ambassador has increased her confidence.

She believes being Fair Ambassador has been a great experience and will be an asset on her resume.

"You feel much more comfortable talking to people," said Butler.

Over the past year Butler said she had the opportunity to represent the fair at various events including Canada Day and Hockey Heritage.

In February she spent three days at a convention at the Royal York in Toronto.

"We got to meet other ambassadors from across Ontario at a special convention," said Butler. She said there were seminars and entertainment and the ambassadors got a look at what's happening at other fairs across the province.

The winner of this year's ambassador competition will represent the fair that weekend, and throughout the rest of the year.

Butler said the ambassador competition consists of a five-minute interview with the judges, two-minute speech on one of three different topics and an impromptu question.

Contestants receive prizes donated by local businesses.

Anyone interested in entering the competition should call Butler at 905-873-9997 or Kenda Nurse at 905-877-0537 by September 3 to obtain an entry form.

Spare change will help local youth centres

Halton Hills Community Support and Information (HHCSI) executive director Joan Barham is hoping area residents will drop their spare change into the bright yellow canisters located in area stores in support of the youth centres in Acton and Georgetown.

The canisters have been placed at the checkout counters in 25 stores, along with a poster, for HHCSI's Youth Round-Up program, which runs through September 19.

Barham said they are asking area residents to drop into the yellow canisters change (rounded up to the next dollar) they receive after making a purchase at the stores. They hope to raise up to $5,000 in the program, which will go toward continued operation of Off The Wall and Open Door youth centres.

"We just want people to be as supportive as they can be," said Barham. "Every bit helps."

Barham said they hope more merchants will participate in the program.

Those who do, will be recognized on posters, in the youth centres and in the local newspapers, said Barham.

Any merchant interested in participating should call HHCSI at 905-873-6502.
