

'They call me the breeeeeze...'

After Daughter Number Two's wedding two weeks ago, I treated myself to a week's vacation. The wedding went beautifully, my daughters were all gorgeous, and the day was perfect.

But it's hard work marrying off a daughter, ya know. It was time to unwind.

Bright and early Monday morning, I dropped off the tuxedos, returned the Buick I drove the bride to the ceremony in, washed my car, filled it with gas and blasted off for a day-long road trip.

One of my co-workers maintains she can rid herself of more stress by climbing on her Harley, and taking a long ride, with the wind in her hair to blow away cobwebs and dissipate that stress.

Personally, I tend to favour four wheels under me (as opposed to two on a Harley) so I set out in my car, with a tentative destination of Tobermory in mind—but that was only a target.

For any road trip, I'm always musically well-equipped, loading eight carefully selected CDs into the player in my car. And since I didn't have a Harley Davidson under me—I borrowed my nephew's Harley Davidson Road Songs double CD to listen to along the way.

That CD is a collection of THE raunchiest, heavy duty, traditional biker rock 'n roll music.

I tell ya, it can raise the testosterone level on an elderly eunuch—it's that good.

Get me out on the road with a clean car, full tank of gas, and a five-speed in my hand, and some magical transformation takes place.

I become a teenager again.

With the stereo at ear bleed level, and the Harley Davidson Road Songs cranking out the tunes, I was in seventh heaven.

And when I play great music, I sing along.

This CD has it all—from Bob Seger's Against the Wind, and Steppenwolf's Born to be Wild, right down to the downright raunchy George Thorogood's Highway 49.

I was pleased with myself as those old lyrics came back to me. Of course, it was at a cost.

While driving with my car's air conditioning on, I open both side windows from time to time, to change the air in the car, then run 'em back up, a few minutes later, at the push of a button.

It was outside Mount Forest that I did my 'change the air' thing, hitting the power window buttons to close 'em up as I motored up the main drag of that sleepy Ontario farm town.

At that particular moment, the CD started to play one of Lynrd Skynrd's greatest road songs, complete with screamin' electric guitars, and a great blues beat—They Call Me The Breeze.

Winding it up to full volume, I sang along, screamin' it out at the top of my lungs:

"THEY CALL ME THE BRÉEEEEEZE, AS I GO ROLLING DOWN THE ROAD..."

I'm not sure what prompted me—it may have been the light breeze on my face, or perhaps that scowling look from those two elderly ladies walking along the sidewalk.

My passenger side window was still down.

With a glow to match the colour of my car, I slide down behind the wheel, dropped down a gear and accelerated out of town, making a mental note to avoid Mount Forest, at all costs, on the return trip. Maybe avoid it for a year or two.

I was thankful for one thing, as I watched Mount Forest disappear in my rear view mirror—I'm pretty sure those dear little old ladies wouldn't have been able to handle my rendition of George Thorogood's B-B-B-Bad To The Bone.

SMOKING is it worth it?

Someday, you'll be offered a cigarette or be tempted to smoke. Before you start, think about it: every drag you take screws up your body.

Smoking can cause permanent damage to your body. Once a person starts, it becomes extremely tough to quit. And did we mention all that cash you'll be blowing in the process?

So, if you're tempted to start, ask yourself, "Is it worth it?"
