

Lest we forget....

Young and old alike paid tribute to Canada's war veterans in services held this past weekend and Monday around town. (Left) Caroline Otto, left, and Nikki MacPherson carry a wreath at the St. Francis of Assisi Remembrance Day ceremony on Friday. Students listened as Second World War veteran Bob McNeilly (inset) related some of his experiences and said why it is important for younger generations to continue to remember those who fought in the war. (Right) The Georgetown Legion colour party stands at attention during Monday's service at Remembrance Park in Georgetown. (Bottom right) Georgetown Legion members parade through the downtown during Saturday's Remembrance parade. (Below) The Acton Legion's colour party lowers the flags during Saturday's service while (bottom left) a Lorne Scot listens to the service at the Acton cenotaph while a veteran salutes.

Child Abuse Breaks Hearts

Child abuse is a far-reaching problem that affects children of all ages, socioeconomic levels and ethnicities. It is every adult's responsibility to help stop child abuse by reporting suspected abuse or neglect. If you believe a child has been harmed, or is in danger of being harmed, call your local department of children and family services or your local police department. If you are a parent, do your best to provide a nurturing, loving home environment for your child. If you need help doing this, there are resources to help you - look online or in the phone book, or ask for assistance through your church or your child's school. If we all do our part to prevent child abuse, we'll get to the heart of the matter.
