Halton Hills Mayor Kathy Gastle (far left) attended Two Grands Four Hands, the third concert in the Georgetown Bach Chorale's Spring Festival, which finished on high note with a Gala Concert last week. Among the performing artists during the Festival were (from left), Ron Greidanus, also the Bach Chorale's artistic director, Yuan Sheng and Tara Hofmeister-Sheng, both from New York.

Bach Chorale awarded grant

Bach Chorale received good news Thursday from the Ontario Trillium Foundation, which awarded the group $24,000 over three years. The money will be used to increase audience attendance and improve the group's marketing, publicity and program content "to preserve this unique classical choir experience for the community," according to the Foundation.

Exhibit opens at The Cellar

Windsor-based artist and illustrator Lisa Swartz recently opened her solo art show, which is hanging at The Cellar Restaurant, 78 Main St. S., Georgetown. The show and sale, which features 17 original works, is comprised of a number of unique acrylic paintings, illustrating people in a plethora of settings. The show continues until Aug. 30.
