Const. Laurel Barnett

There is no such thing as easy money

There have been many technological advances that make our lives easier. Sometimes, however, they can cause us problems that we don't anticipate.

Who likes to be told that they have performed a "fatal error" by their computer? Thank goodness I have been trained in CPR!

One of the things that tends to bite people in the back pocket is the ATM machine, and electronic banking. There is a scam among the youth of Georgetown that involves the culprit approaching the victim and asking them to cash a cheque for a favour. The culprit offers to pay the victim $50 for the their trouble. A few days later the cheque (either stolen or forged) bounces and the victim's account is debited for the entire amount.

You should never cash a cheque for someone unless you are prepared to lose your money. If someone asks you for this favour, your antennae should twitch and you should hear alarm bells! Ask yourself why the culprit doesn't have a bank account, or why they don't go to one of the businesses in town that will cash cheques? Why are they willing to hand over $50 so easily?

Words of wisdom from one of our detectives... "There is no such thing as easy money!"

While we are on the topic of bank machines, let me share a few other pointers. You should check your bank statement regularly to ensure that no unauthorized withdrawals have occurred. Protect your PIN, and don't write it down anywhere close to your bank cards.
