

Local youth and pals raise $1,500 for Toronto hospital

Marcus Rees of Halton Hills and approximately 30 of his friends recently got together for a fun night of camping and raised $1,500 for Princess Margaret Hospital at the same time.

Many of the campers were drawn from 11-year-old Rees' hockey and baseball teams and went door-to-door requesting donations. Several local businesses also supported the event.

Buy a paper apple

Nutrition program under way

Area residents are encouraged to buy a paper apple over the next couple of weeks in support of Halton school nutrition programs.

The Paper Apple Campaign, which began September 8 and will run through Sept. 19, is designed to raise both funds and awareness for the need of school nutrition programs during Breakfast for Learning Month.

Corporate sponsors— RBC Financial Group and Smitty's Family Restaurants— will sell paper apples to customers.

Royal Bank branches will create unique displays and will be judged on Sept. 19 for their creativity and visual impact.

There are currently 23 school nutrition programs in Halton, and six new programs are due to start this fall.

The 29 programs will serve more than 12,000 students with approximately 400 volunteers.

The Halton Food for Thought Community Partners Program collaborative is made up of YMCA of Oakville, Halton District and Halton Catholic District School Boards, Halton Region Health Department and Social and Community Services, Burlington Family YMCA and volunteer community representatives.
