TV personality helms hospital's TV series

The Osler Health Connection on Cogeco and Rogers Television is back on the air with a new host and a new slate of shows that aim to connect people to their health and their hospital.

Jane Gilbert, senior producer and host on Discovery Channel's Daily Planet, will be hosting a new series of shows that will explore interesting "in the news" topics such as: Dealing with Infectious Diseases—SARS and Beyond; Family Violence; E-Health—a Virtual hospital, as well as other hot health topics.

"The Osler Health Connection television program was initiated as a vehicle to connect people to William Osler Health Centre, the services, and to the experts who provide care," says Rosalie Penny, vice-president, Public Affairs and Community Alliances. "That is why I am so pleased that through a special arrangement with Rogers Television and Cogeco Television, each of our new episodes will air seven times a week in virtually every community we serve from Toronto to Halton Hills."

Cogeco airings beginning on Thursday, Sept. 18: Thursdays, 5:30 p.m.; Fridays, 10:30 p.m.; Sundays, 7 p.m. and Mondays, noon.

The programs air Tuesday evenings at 8 p.m. on Rogers Television cable channel 10.

Here is the 2003 - 2004 line up of programs and first airdates:

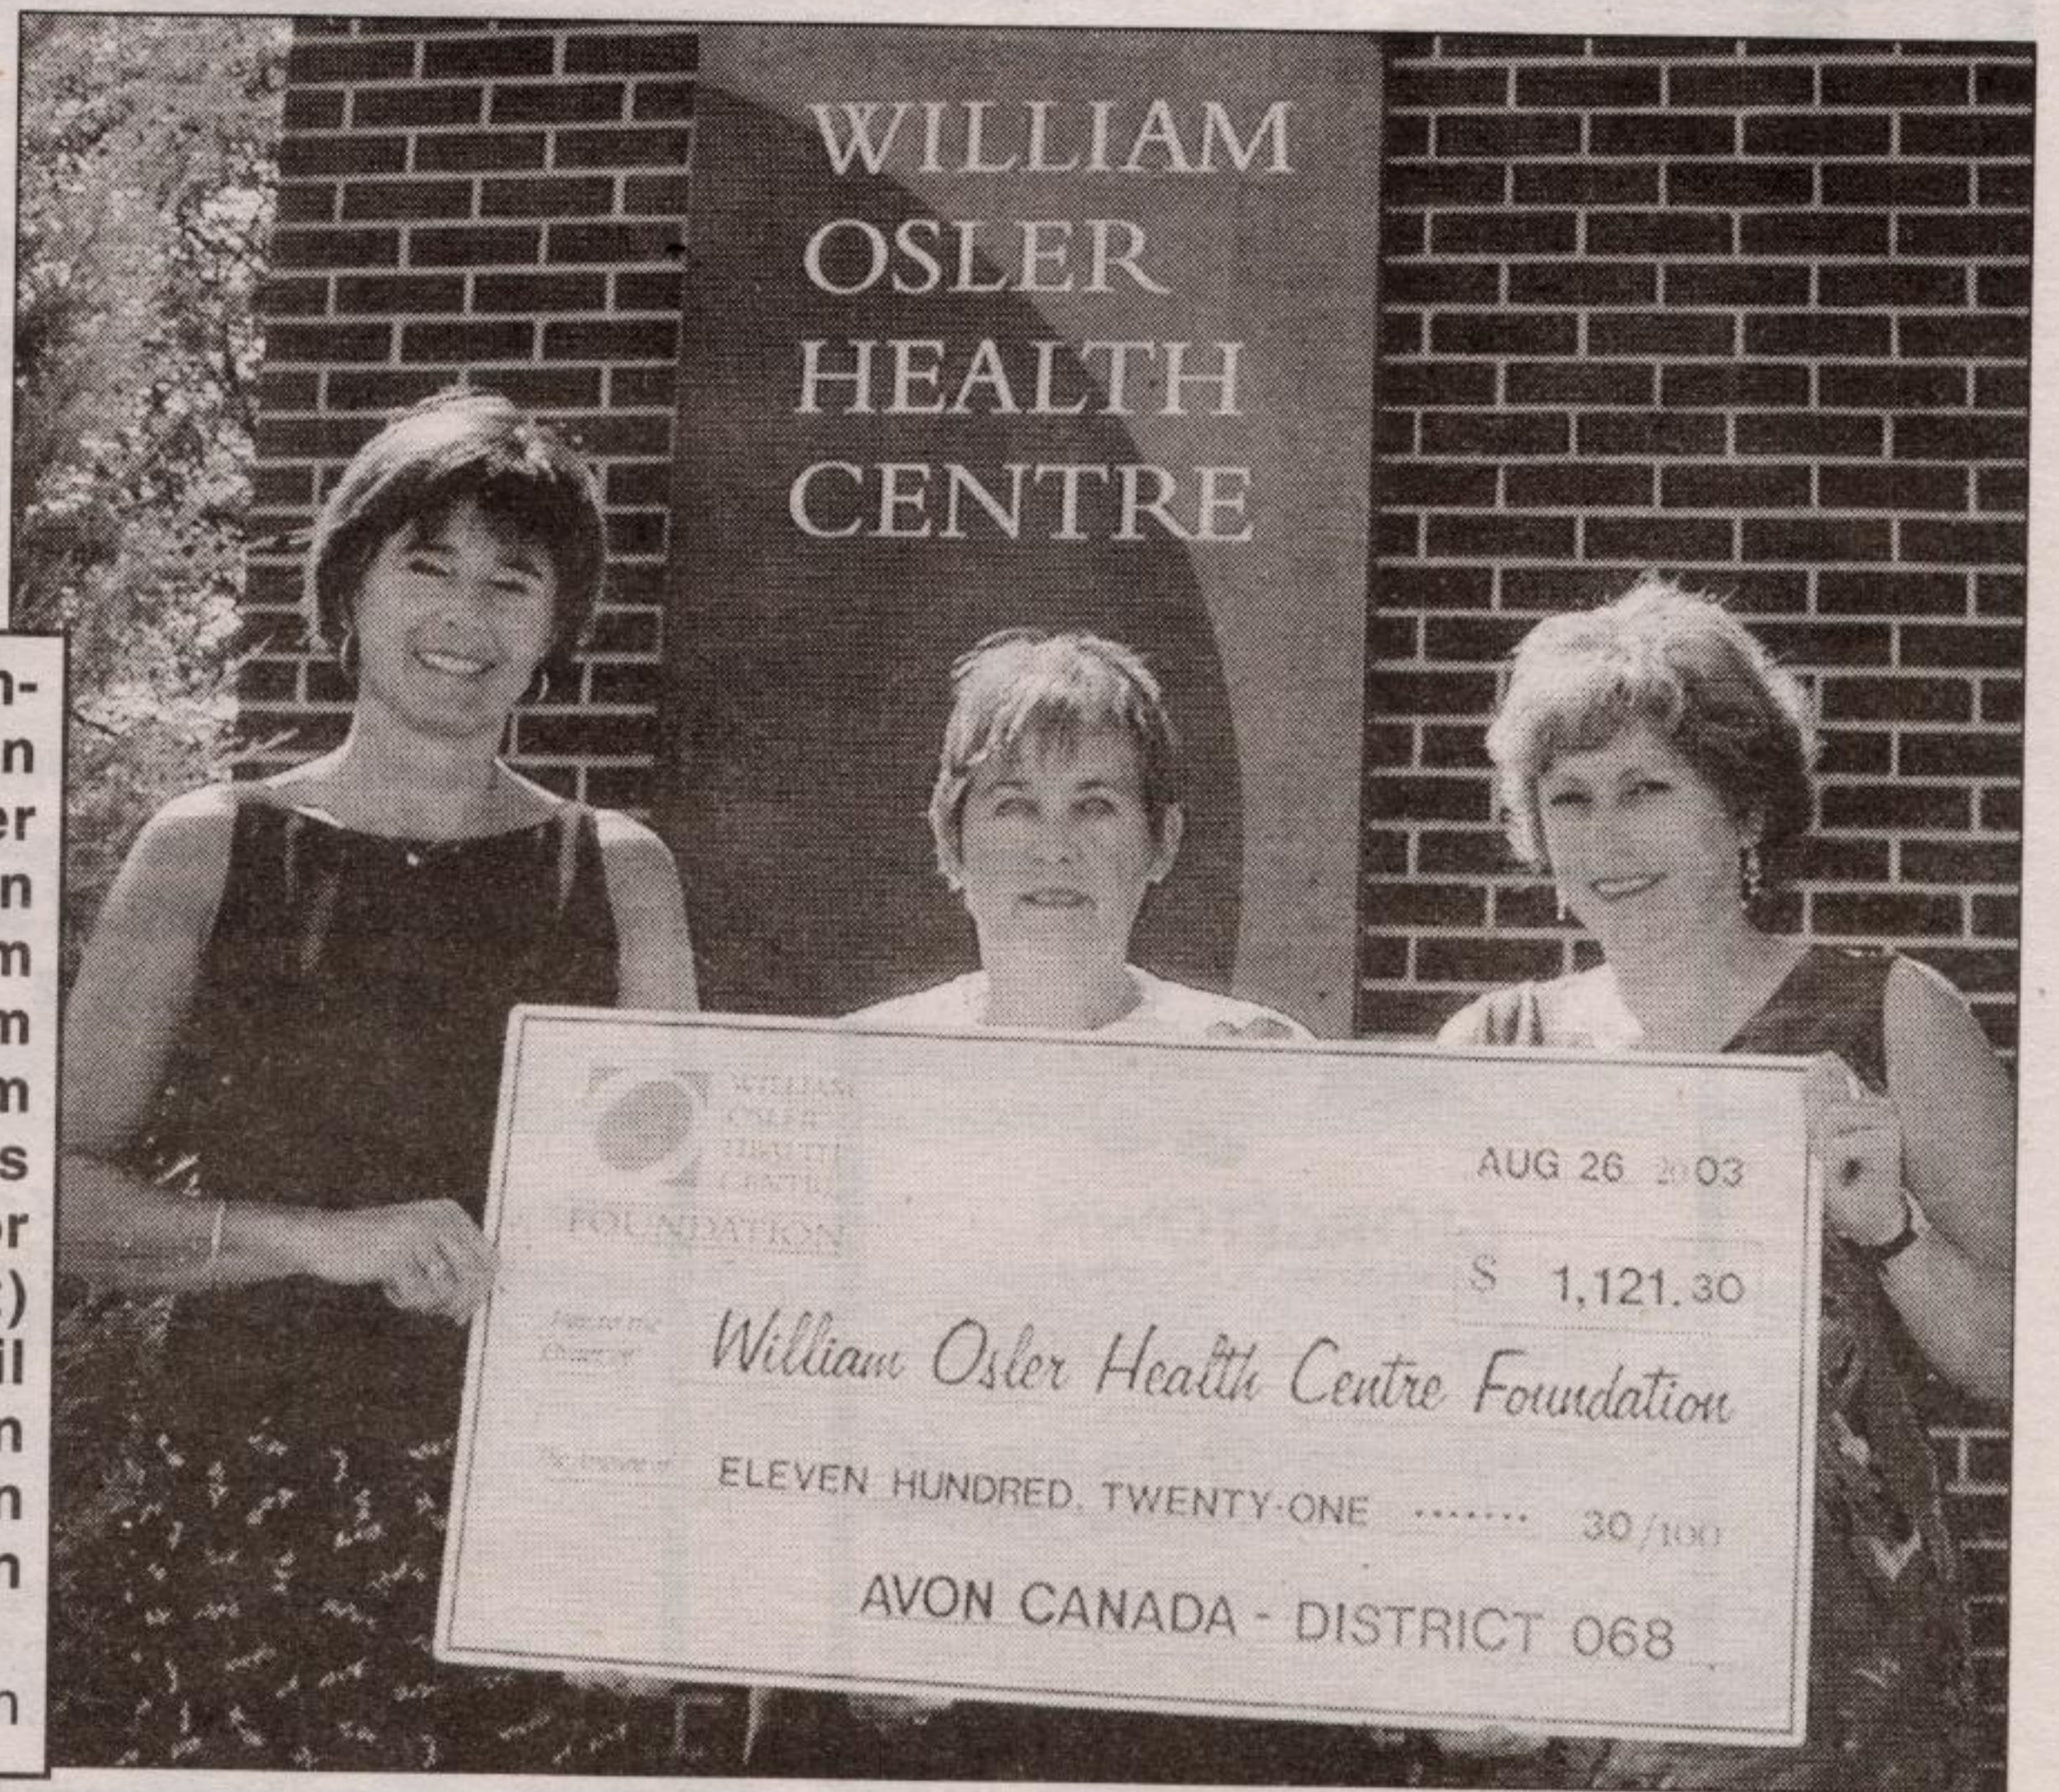

- 1) Managing Infectious Diseases—Beyond SARS; Sept. 18
  - 2) Family Violence; Oct. 2
  - 3) Liver Disease—Hepatitis A-C; Oct. 16
  - 4) Herbal Medicine; Oct. 30
  - 5) What's New in Surgery?; Nov. 14

  - 7) Teens in Crisis—Suicide; Dec. 11
- Other topics covered are Baby Care;

Following their successful stuffed monkey and hand cream fund-raiser, Avon Canada reps dropped by William Osler Health Centre Foundation in Georgetown to donate $1,121.30, the proceeds from the campaign. The fund-raiser ran from May to July, and approximately $3 from the sale of each monkey package was donated to the Foundation. On hand for the presentation were (from left) Foundation Fund Development Council member Belinda Froggett, Georgetown Avon sales rep Helen Corris and Avon Canada District Sales Manager Susan Maik.
