Creature Comfort Co.

Are you planning to feed wild birds this winter? If your answer is yes, then now is the time to get started. Birds route out as many as five different feeding stations prior to winter setting in and if left too late the lack of birds at your feeders will be disappointing.

At Creature Comfort we can help you design a feeding station that will fulfill the needs of backyard birds. We have many plain and seed blends designed to attract up to 62 varieties of birds. In addition, suet cages and peanut feeders for woodpeckers and nuthatches, and nyjer tubes for finches (they do not leave in winter). You'll also find handmade wood feeders of various sizes and styles both for hanging or pole mounting, which provide perching room for cardinals, blue jays and chickadees. If squirrels are a problem, we can help you with that as well.

Just as important or maybe even more so, water is a necessity and we have heated birdbaths and de-icers. The staff at Creature Comfort are always happy to offer their knowledge and experience to help make your backyard bird feeding a rewarding and entertaining hobby.
