Celebrate fall with Harvest Festival

Looking for some fun and laughs? Head down to the Harvest Festival in Downtown Georgetown tomorrow (Saturday) between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m.

The Festival celebrates the last Georgetown Farmer's Market of the year and stalls will be crammed with the harvest bounty and craft vendors galore.

In addition, there will be plenty of hands-on fun for festival goers of all ages— pony rides, bouncy castle, pumpkin carving, flower arranging, live music, face painting and street theatre.

Special guest will be CLarOL the Clown, performing at 1 and 3 p.m. CLarOL, also known as Carol Crooks from Windsor, began clowning 13 years ago after touring as a mime through North and Central America. She has performed with the National Arts Centre Orchestra, the Windsor Symphony Orchestra and the Royal Hanneford Circus.

She averages about 350 appearances per year.

Stores will also participate in a street long sidewalk sale and preview fall lines all decorated with pumpkins and corn stalks.

October is Library Signup Month

Hey kids! If you come into Halton Hills Public Library during October, and register for your very first library card (accompanied by a parent or guardian), you will be given a small surprise and your name entered in a draw for a great prize bag. Having fun isn't hard when you've got a library card! For more information, call 905-873-2681 ext. 2515 or 519-853-0301.
