

Willow Park holds Falling Leaves Festival

If you're looking for something interesting to do this weekend, consider a few hours of volunteering at Willow Park Ecology Centre's Falling Leaves Festival.

Participants will be mixing up a brew of work and fun with pumpkin carving, a scavenger hunt as well as an educational feature on trees and fall flowers.

Bring your family out to enjoy the fresh air and community work. The focus will be on planting trees and shrubs, repairing pathways, and wrapping trees to protect from the local resident beaver.

The Festival runs 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. each day and refreshments will be provided for volunteers.

This is an excellent opportunity for students needing volunteer hours toward their graduation volunteer requirement. Bring your boots, gloves, shovels, rakes and clippers.

You can find Willow Park off Mary St. in

Norval. More information is available from coordinator Ruth Kuchinad, 905-877-3676 or ruth@willowparkecolgy.com
