Rebels moving on

The Georgetown Rebels are back in the Halton final and one step from a return to the provincial championship.

Georgetown made short work of the Nelson Lords Thursday afternoon with a 25-16, 25-11 victory in the Halton semifinal. They will now play either Loyola or Pearson in the final Monday at Sheridan College at 3:30 p.m.

Nelson looked as though they would offer a challenge to the Rebels, who held a slim 13-12 lead. But then Georgetown reeled off 10 straight points to take charge. That impressive run would be topped in the second game when the Rebels took 11 straight points.

Rebel coach Jonas Kaciulis said although the Rebels were into the game early on, they needed a few big blocks to really build some momentum. Kaciulis said Gavin Viray-Cox turned up his game in the semifinal.

"He's stepped into a larger role and probably played the best he has in two years."

The junior Rebels were also playing in the Halton semifinals Thursday. Results were unavailable at press time.
