

GDHS parents to raise funds at Harvest Fest

Once again, Georgetown District High School Parent Partners in Education (PPE) will be teaming up with the Kiwanis Club of Georgetown to raise funds for the high school.

In the past, the group has raised funds to upgrade the science labs at GDHS, and last year, they upgraded the library resources, adding books, reference materials and equipment.

This year, the PPE has targeted the cafeteria for its fund-raising revenues, opting to improve the auditorium resources.

Since the cafeteria is used for so many school and community events, the PPE is hoping to improve the facility by upgrading or adding ventilation fans, new screens, announcement boards, new seating and improving the acoustics.

The group has already begun fund-raising, having held a bake sale in the school last week, and is now planning to work with the Kiwanis Club at its annual Harvest Fest fund-raiser, Friday, Nov. 14, at Holy Cross Church hall.

The event will begin at 6:30 p.m., with free wine tasting, hosted by Authentic Wine and Spirits Merchants, followed by a hip of beef dinner with wine and a silent and live auction, wrapping up with a dance with live entertainment.

Parent Partners in Education chair Barb Mansfield said that in addition to attending the event, organizers are asking people to donate items to add to the silent and live auctions.

Tickets to the event at $50 each and will be seated in tables of eight for those who wish to go as a group.

Anyone wishing to purchase tickets or donate items can call PPE organizers Barb Mansfield at 905-873-6280, Ruth Hope at 905-873-6265, Janet Scott at 905-877-7501 or Gail at The Freckled Lion, 905-873-1213.

— What satellite providers were telling their customers recently

Translation: Life's just better with cable.

Recently, the customers of a major Canadian satellite TV provider discovered that when the weather is bad, so is satellite TV. That's not the case with Cogeco Digital Cable. It's reliable in any kind of weather, which is a comfort as winter approaches. And unlike satellite, Cogeco offers true Video on Demand and cable hook up on three other TVs at no extra charge. So if satellite's got you under the weather, call us at 1-866-952-2253.
