Road rule#1: See and be seen

Childhood adventures involve neighbourhood streets. No matter if kids are riding bikes, walking to the playground or simply taking the bus to school, talking about road safety early will help ensure kids keep safety in mind wherever they go.

This fall, Alliance Tire Professionals and the Canada Safety Council are encouraging kids to "see and be seen" through Kids On Patrol (K.O.P.), an educational and interactive program coinciding with National School Safety Week in October. In its second year, K.O.P. helps teach road safety to young children through creative resources provided to schools across Canada.

"Road safety is important at any time of year," says Yves Maurant, Pneu du Boulevard Ltée, Alliance Tire Professionals. "But in the fall, when days are getting shorter and excitement for Halloween is gearing up, it's an excellent time to remind both kids and parents of the importance of pedestrian safety."

In time for Halloween, local Alliance Tire Professionals dealers have a special treat for kids. As part of the "see and be seen" theme, and back by popular demand, kids and parents can pick up a free, retro-reflective armband that can be worn while trick-or-treating.

"Before the excitement of Halloween night comes, take some time to ensure kids understand the rules of the road," says Emile Therien, president, Canada Safety Council. "By explaining the mystery of traffic, you help make them more aware and safer on the road."

Alliance Tire Professionals and the Canada Safety Council suggest the following tips to help kids get ready for the streets:

- Teach children the different traffic signals and the meanings of "medians," "intersections" and "pedestrians". It will help demystify the world of traffic around them.

- Help young ones recognize when it is safe to cross the street. For example, when at a traffic light, teach them to look for the walk signal, but also look both ways (left, right and left again) to make sure all cars have stopped before crossing.

- Warn children about the dangers of crossing a street in between parked cars.

- Flashing lights and sirens on emergency vehicles can be exciting for kids. Use this natural enthusiasm to teach them how the lights and sounds help warn drivers and pedestrians to proceed with caution and not to cross the street in front of a police car, ambulance or fire truck if approaching.

- Show children the red flashing lights on school buses. Explain how drivers must stop when the lights flash and teach them when it is safe to get on and off the bus. Always go to the bus stop with younger children and don't let older kids arrive at the stop too early to avoid the temptation to wander.

- Don't forget: a good example is the best teacher! Always obey all traffic signals and don't jaywalk.
