Rebels reach tournament semis

The Georgetown Rebels continue to inch closer to their goal of an Ontario Federation of Schools Athletic Association (OFSAA) medal.

The Rebels reached the semifinals of a tournament hosted by the defending provincial champion, London's Saunders Secondary. The tournament featured nine of the province's top-10 senior boys' volleyball teams and it took the number one-ranked Saunders to knock the Rebels out of the tournament. The 25-19, 25-21 loss to Saunders showed that Georgetown is closing the gap.

"They still are a fine-tuned team and showed they deserve the number one ranking," said Rebel coach Jonas Kaciulis, "but that match was some of the best high school volleyball I've seen. Both teams wanted it.

We would hammer a ball and they would dig it and then we would run a play, hammer the ball and they would dig it."

The Rebels, ranked fourth in the province, beat the fifth-ranked Chatham-Kent 25-19, 25-18 in the quarterfinals.

"They were a similar team to us and it just came down to execution," Kaciulis said.

In pool play, the Rebels split with second ranked Oakridge 25-18, 15-25 and McGregor before taking Chippewa in two straight games.

The Rebels split their team with their first-year senior players playing in a tournament at E.C. Drury, where they won the consolation championship. They took their match with the eventual champions, St. Clair, to three games.

JJ Lafore

ACTON DISTRICT HIGH SCHOOL

Ashton Roza

GEORGETOWN DISTRICT HIGH SCHOOL

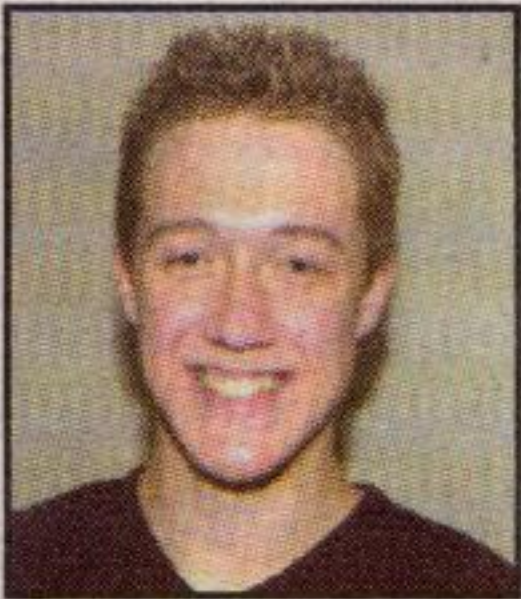

Laura Thompson

Krista Landry

Melissa Bigg

Nic Turnhout

The Acton High School athletes of the week are Melissa Bigg and Ashton Roza. Bigg continued a strong season despite injuries and placed fifth in the senior girls race at a pre-GHAC cross-country meet at Bronte Park. Roza turned in his best finish of the season in the senior boys race at the same meet, placing third.

The Christ the King athletes of the week are J.J. Laforet and Krista Landry. Laforet, a setter on the junior boys volleyball team, was chosen for his leadership on the floor and his setting and blocking against Milton. Landry finished third in the midget girls cross-country race at Bronte Park to help Christ the King win the team title.

The Georgetown District High School athletes of the week are Laura Thompson and Nic Turnhout. Thompson, who plays post on the senior girls basketball team, was named for her excellent work ethic in wins over Acton and E.C. Drury. Turnhout was selected for his outstanding middle play, blocking and hitting as the Rebels improved their season record to 7-0.
