We love Lucy

Norval honours author every November

Montgomery Country Christmas is an annual celebration in the village of Norval, and of one of its former famous residents—Lucy Maud Montgomery.

The author of Anne of Green Gables lived in the small village, east of Georgetown from 1926 to 1935 with her husband, Rev. Ewan Macdonald, the minister of Norval Presbyterian Church. During this time, the famed author wrote five of her popular novels: Emily's Quest, Magic for Marigold, A Tangled Web, Pat of Silverbush and Mistress Pat.

Montgomery loved Norval and its people and wrote about them in her journals that in recent years have been published to popular and critical acclaim.

Residents can get a taste of Norval's yesteryears when the village celebrates its famous citizen's birthday annually in November. This year, on its 12th anniversary, Montgomery Country Christmas celebrates Nov. 27-28.

Each year, the three churches, United, Presbyterian and Anglican outdo themselves to present wonderful bazaars packed with tasty goodies and homemade treasures—just in time for the holiday season.

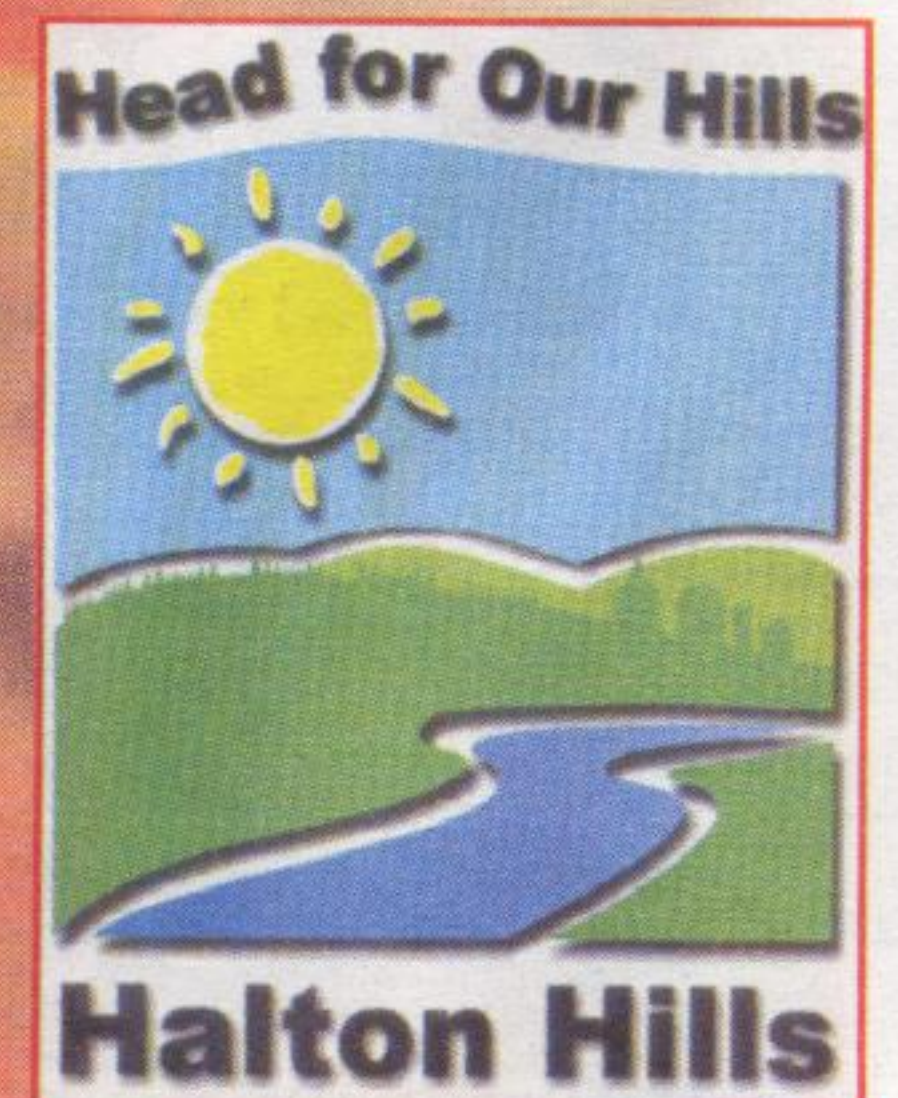

As well there are wandering minstrels, carriage rides, special teas, book readings and more.

If you love Lucy Maud Montgomery's books, small town Canada and Christmas, drop by Montgomery Christmas Nov. 27-28.
