Will start new duties next week Police board names Kingston new deputy chief

The Halton Regional Police Services Board has named a new deputy chief.

The board announced last week that it has selected Michael Kingston as Deputy Chief— Administration. He will commence his new duties Nov. 15.

The Waterdown resident and 28-year veteran of Halton police joins current deputy chief of operations, Gary Crowell, and Chief Ean Algar on the service's top-level administrative team.

Kingston, 49, is currently a superintendent and commander of No. 1 District, which encompasses Milton, Georgetown and Acton. The creation of the Deputy Chief— Administration position was in response to the Best Practices Study the police services board commissioned to review the efficiency of the administrative functions of the police service.

In a press release, Don Robinson,

Chairman of the Halton Regional Police Services Board, said, "the board was impressed with the skills, experience and commitment of all the candidates, and the service is fortunate to have such a depth of talent."

Kingston, a graduate of Aldershot High School, started his policing career in Burlington and served as the detective-sergeant for the Criminal Investigations Bureau in Burlington in the mid-1990s.

"I'm truly privileged to be selected," said Kingston. "It's truly a great opportunity for me. There are tremendous challenges with our new computer system and growing communities and trying to lower the tax burden on the community while providing a more efficient service."

The police services board said five candidates, all employees of the Halton police service, were interviewed for the new deputy chief's job. Robinson said the board has not yet determined the salary for the new position but that it will be finalized later this month.

Complaints top 1,000

The Town of Halton Hills' Enforcement Services received 1,027 new complaints in the first half of 2004, resolving 704 cases by the end of September.

There are currently 655 active complaint cases from residents involving everything from noise to property standards. Currently 463 are under investigation, 78 have legal action pending and 114 are awaiting first investigation.

TERRA Trends GREENHOUSES

A Greens Christmas

One need look no further than the wonders of nature to spice up their home for the holidays. Fresh greens make for a great festive feel indoors or out. Decorate your entrance to welcome the season with great selections of evergreens, berries and twigs.

Great for planters, wreaths, door décor, mantles and centerpieces a huge selection is waiting to inspire the decorator in you this holiday season.

When creating your holiday masterpiece remember to keep it as lush and full as possible. Hemlock, fir, cedar and pine are great evergreens to lend support and texture to your arrangement. Viburnum, Ilex, Manzanita Berry and Pepperberry add fabulous colour and shape. Curly Willow, Dogwood and Rose Hips complete the ensemble adding both colour and dimension. Exciting new additions arrive all the time so this week check out Variegated Holly and glossy Magnolia leaves. Check out our greens tents this season and let your imagination bring festive inspirations to life.
