Fabric art studio opens at the Williams Mill

Christine Ford is thrilled to be opening the first ever quilting and fabric arts studios at the Williams Mill Visual Arts Studios in Glen Williams.

A Gala opening reception will be held this Friday, Nov. 19, 7-10 p.m.

Ford finds that the large walls and windows of the Stone Building Studios provide the perfect location for the creation and display of her art.

"I hope to continue exploring new techniques and concepts for years to come. The many books available and wide range of work by other quilters never ceases to inspire and motivate me."

Ford began quilting in 1998 and has been addicted ever since.

"There's something comforting and relaxing about working with fabric," she says, "I would encourage anyone to try it".

If you're not sure how to begin, get some hints at Ford's opening celebration, Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 20-21, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Ford will give demos and mini workshops at 11 a.m., 1 p.m., and 3 p.m.

Some workshops include: Fibrelicious! — New ways to embellish your projects with today's great fibres and threads and Easy Fabric Garland— Learn how to make this beautiful, yet surprisingly simple, fabric garland for your holiday decorations. No special tools or sewing required.

Canadian master carver guests at Williams Mill studio

In an event titled, Meet your Makers in Studio Seven, Canadian master wood engraver Wesley W. Bates will be a special guest in Marlene Madole's Studio 7 at Williams Mill on Saturday, Nov. 20, and his prints will be exhibited for sale from Nov. 20 to Dec. 24.

Wood engraving is a centuries-old tradition that Bates employs to create prints of graphic power, beauty and complexity. His work has been used in books by W.O.

Mitchell, Stuart McLean, and in books published at The Porcupine's Quill in Erin.

For more information about Bates, or for directions to the studio, contact Madole at 905-459-9753 or see www.williamsmill.com.

Madole's studio hours will be 12-5 p.m. on both Saturday and Sunday, Nov. 20-21. The artist will also be demonstrating watercolour painting in her studio on Sunday afternoon in honour of World Watercolour Day.
