

Three local actors star on Brampton stage

Three of Georgetown's performers will be leading the laughs when they take on "epic" roles in an all-new production of the award-winning comedy, Thunderbolts and Dunderheads, which takes to the stage at Brampton's Heritage Theatre for a two-week run, starting Thursday, May 5.

Georgetown natives David Cairns, Christine Ford and Craig Marshall all take on divine roles, playing gods from Greek and Norse mythology in Playing After Dark Ltd.'s production of this contemporary comedy written and directed by award-winning Canadian playwright Todd McGinnis. Thunderbolts and Dunderheads is a comedy set among the Greek Gods of Mount Olympus.

Cairns and Ford are returning to reprise the roles they originated in the play's world-premiere production back in 2001. Marshall is a new addition to the cast.

Playing Zeus, King of the Gods himself, has fallen to Craig Marshall, a longtime member of Georgetown Globe Productions who has won awards for his work on Globe's Crazy for You and City of Angels.

Ford is thrilled to be reprising her role as Valkyrie, a visiting Emissary from the Nordic Mythos-Next-Door who catches Zeus's eye and becomes an unwitting object of his desires.

Cairns is also happy to be recreating his role as Zeus's scary big brother Hades, Lord of the Underworld. He has amassed a list of credits in Georgetown and all around the GTA and in the U.S. and western Canada.

Thunderbolts and Dunderheads runs Thursdays-Saturdays (May 5-7 and 12-14) at 8 p.m. at Brampton's Heritage Theatre. Saturday matinees start at 2 p.m. Tickets are $16 for 50+, $10 for 18 and under, and $18 for adults. Group rates are available. Seating is reserved.
